STEVE GATHJE'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 45+ YEARS (16,742 DAYS) By: Steve Gathje

[Editor's note: Steven Gathje, 63, an actuary from South Minneapolis, Minnesota, finally ended his running streak after 16,742 consecutive days (45.84 years) on Friday, 27 July 2018. Started on 25 September 1972, Gathje had the fifth longest active running streak in the world as listed by Streak Runners International (SRI) and the United States Running Streak Association (USRSA) when his streak ended. He now has the longest retired running streak in the United States and second longest retired running streak in the world after Ron Hill of England (52+ years; 19,032 days) as listed by those same running associations. We here at SRI/USRSA wish Steve Gathje a quick recovery and much luck in the future.]

Sadly, it is not just my streak but likely my running days that are coming to an end. About 3-4 months ago I felt some pain in my right hip but as we all know aches and pains are not unusual. I've certainly had my share of the them over almost 46 years of running! I was able to maintain 35-40 miles a week but as time went by it was getting worse. I found my pace was about 30 seconds a mile slower than it had been.

I maintained a 4+ mile a day average through July 1st. I was in almost constant pain - it hurt to even walk. On July 2nd the pain was so intense I could only limp through 1.5 miles at about 10 minute mile pace. But I still held out hope that it would get better on its own. It didn't, it got worse. I now could not sleep at night because of the pain and couldn't walk more than a block or two, although I did keep running 1.5 miles a day.

Last Friday I finally saw a doctor. He put the x-rays up so I could see them. My left hip showed ample space between bones while my right hip was clearly bone-on-bone. He said that I had arthritis and that I would need a hip replacement. I got a cortisone shot which finally got rid of the pain, but no more running.

As much as I am disappointed at losing my streak, the inability to run at all is a much bigger hole. I've shed a few tears and I'll likely shed a few more. I'll be fine but it does hurt.

I've started reading up on hip replacements. First, running did not cause my issues. It is likely that running actually postponed my needing the hip replacement. So for people who are not having issues, please don't stop running! In fact, cherish it!

The picture below is from my 45th Streak Anniversary run. Steve DeBoer you know. The other person is Tim O'Hara who helped me get started in running back when I was a sophomore in HS and went out for cross country for the first time. Tim was a senior on the team and an is all-around great guy. Amazingly we have stayed in contract all these many years.

REFLECTIONS OF A STREAKER AT YEAR 37 By: Ben Dillow Redlands, California

ben_dillow@redlands.edu August 18, 2018

Year 37 of running every day without fail slips into a journal which records days 13,150 through 13,515—each run nurtured by Mother Luck and Father Resolve—for anyone who has run as many as 5 days in a row know both luck and resolve are constant companions.

Daily.

Good luck jogged with me this past year—again: no broken bones, pulled muscles, turned ankles, disabling accidents, unmanageable health challenges; no life issues intervened that took away the choice, daily, of lacing up the sneakers and heading out for a run. We all interact, daily, with folks who for a variety of reasons simply cannot run, and so I say a silent prayer of thanksgiving that as I approach my eighth decade on the planet I can today—and hopefully again tomorrow—choose to run—because I'm lucky. After all, no one would choose to sprain their ankle, break their leg or take up residence in the hospital, would they—yet each of these things happen all the time.

Ah, yes, my daily runs are anchored not only in choice, but in good luck, for as Kenneth Ferring implies in his poem DIRGE, "good luck" is not a given.

1-2-3 was the number he played but today the number came 3-2-1; bought his Carbide at 30 and it went to 29; had the favorite at Bowie but the track was slow—

Denouement to denouement, he took a personal pride in the certain, certain way he lived his own, private life, but nevertheless, they shut off his gas; nevertheless, the bank foreclosed; nevertheless, the landlord called; nevertheless, the radio broke—

Now that I'm retired—my schedule is largely mine to define, how's that for luck—old, healthy and free! And I was lucky; I taught—in a University setting—which allowed me more discretionary time than most work. I'm lucky I choose to live in California where bad weather rarely lurks. I'm lucky I have a family that allows me to steal an hour or three every day for completely personal pleasure and who supports that choice. And I'm really lucky with my choice of parents, inheriting genes which tolerate—indeed celebrate—the daily run.

So, Mother Luck has been, and is good to me.

But beyond luck there is that grey area of choice and resolve is there not?

That area in which choice abides, and where will takes root. Where sniffles, or schedule, or sunshine or rain, where a good book or a pain in the rear, or a phone we must ring invite second guessing. That area where "in a bit" turns inexorably into "too late today." Where unrequited good intentions leave an open space in our running journal.

One is not a bad person, someone morally deficient in some way, if they chose not to run; most on the planet occupy this group and the power of joining is at times overwhelming.

So, even as luck abides, so too must will be nurtured. We streakers have learned the wisdom of asking "When will we run today," not "Will we run today." Different question, different outcome and not all days will lend themselves to an enthusiastic embrace of "the run." But! We streakers have come to learn that while we don't with equal fervor look forward to every daily run, we know by experience that we typically enjoy each—once done.

99 and three-quarter percent guaranteed.

And so we go.

Likely our running will morph and change over time as surely as our other relationships and our bodies will. My journal still tracks the mileage (40 miles a week, 2000 a year and now 68,368 more or less) but doesn't focus so much on times.

Two decades ago I ran every step, timed every run. Today? A bit less anal. While I always get my one-mile uninterrupted run in each day, now on my "runs" often mix in a bit of walking. I like the mix! I find myself no longer interested in paying the entry fees for another race tee shirt to cram into an already overflowing drawer. I often run without a watch—the focus of my runs no longer their speed but their pleasure, and I don't want my "pleasure" defined by something as arbitrary as a watch (or when I golf, the scorecard.)

I don't claim wisdom in any of these decisions, they are offered as narrative not model, biography not boast, and confession: for me they allow a continuation of a habit that pleases.

There is no question but that an open day in my schedule awaits, perhaps this week or next; perhaps next year or later; it will come by Mother Luck turning or Father Resolve fading.

But as it turns out that day was not today, nor I trust tomorrow. My wish is that Mother Luck and Father Resolve travel with me for a goodly number of days to come—and with each of you as well.

"To keep from decaying, to be a winner, the athlete must accept pain – not only accept it, live with it. learn to fear it."

- Dr. George Sheehan

"In the last 50 yards, my body had long since exhausted its energy but it went on running just the same."

- Sir Roger Bannister

"Never take the lead unless you really want it, and if you take it, do something with it . . . Once in the lead, you have only two options, either you are going to pick up the pace, or you are going to slow it down. Once in control, a fast pace usually insures the fastest runner will win, a slow pace perhaps the fastest runner will still win but occasionally the race will go to the best kicker."

GEORGE CHURCH'S STREAK HITS 3 DECADES By: George Church Cockeysville, Maryland

Hey fellow streakers, today [27 July 2018] is my 30-year running streakaversary – 10,958 straight days without missing. The kids and grandkids think the streak is pretty cool (I guess) but they have no interest in streaks of their own. In the early years, I don't think my sweetheart, Barbara, cared much for the streak. However, she became accustomed to it and now I think she's pretty proud. She's been very supportive and understanding. Barb and I have a 40-year streak.

I started the streak the day we got back from a family trip to Disney World. I was inspired by a buddy of mine, Tim McDermott, who started his streak on 1/1/80. Tim made it to 21 years before his knees crapped out. He was a sub-three-hour marathoner in his day. Not me. I did barely break 4 hours on 3 occasions.

To put my streak in perspective, I started during the same month that Bush, Sr. and Dukakis became the Republican and Democrat Presidential nominees in '88.

Total Streak miles = 52,101, for an average of 4.75 miles/day (not nearly as good as many of the superlative runners on the streak list, but it is two times around the world). My annual mileage has actually increased over the past decade and I hope to break 2,000 again this year.

I started keeping a running diary in May, 1982 and my 2018 diary is up to date as of this morning (6 miler).

During my streak, I have run in 36 states, 3 territories, and 7 countries. (Again, not very impressive compared to many runners, but still. . . )

I have run in rain, snow, sleet, clear, wind, calm, night, day, early, late and in temperatures as high as 108 degrees and as low as - 21 degrees (only one mile that day).

I've taken some moderate risks during the streak including a lot of downhill skiing and a fair number of rugby games, but fortunately. While I've had a few aches and pains, obviously I've suffered no streak ending injuries.

I don't get sick very often and nothing serious. I suspect there's a cause and effect between running and wellness but who knows for sure?

I don't run many races any more but I have run the Annapolis 10 Miler almost every August since 1982. I've also run 6 marathons during the streak including the 99th and 100th Boston. (I was way too slow to qualify but they had a lottery for those two years.)

I have never been fast and I have slowed considerably over the past several years. I used to be able to run 10 miles in under 80 minutes on a good day and now, on a good day, I may barely be able to break 110 minutes.

I am astonished at how far and how fast some folks around my age on the streak list are able to run. It is also inconceivable to me that there are 5 guys on the streak list with streaks exceeding 45 years, including Jon Sutherland who will hit 50 years next May. (His streak exceeds mine by a measly 7005 days!!!) The list also includes 14 streakers whose streaks span from 40 to 45 years, 25 more between 35 and 40 years (including 2 women) and 18 more (including 3 women) who have streaks of 30-35 years. I make number 19 in that category.

Speaking of streakers, kudos to my friends Susan Schultz and her daughter, Zoe, who have streaks of 10 years and almost 8 years, respectively. I am proud of them.

My only regret about the streak is that I didn't start a few years earlier. I also regret that my streak will end someday – probably when I least expect it. "C'est la vie, say the old folks, it goes to show you never can tell." Chuck Berry, circa 1964. Every day is a gift.

PS- I wrote this on Friday [27 July 2018]. Then, I learned over the weekend that Steve Gathje, #5 on the active list at 45+ years (16,472 days) had to end his streak due to a hip injury. Likewise, my friend Zoe Schultz's 8-year streak ended due to illness. That goes to show you that you can't take anything for granted.

Counting Down By: Scott Ludwig

When I was growing up, I started counting down the days to Christmas the day after Halloween. I figured trick-or-treating in the neighborhood twice wearing two different costumes or throwing an occasional water balloon or three pushed the needle too close to 'naughty' so I decided the first day of November was the day I tried being on my best behavior so that I would make Santa's 'nice' list by December 25.

Flash forward to more than half a century later. My mental countdown to retirement started when I still had 115 days (calendar days, not working days) left. By no means was I naughty during that time—I still gave my job everything I had—but the closer I got until that magical day that had been 40 years in the making, the days became longer and longer. Finally, on March 9, 2018, the wait was finally over. Retirement! Freedom!

Well, almost.

I still had one more countdown to go: the countdown to running my 150,000th mile. After reaching my original target of 100,000 miles as I crossed the finish line of the 2005 Atlanta Marathon I had the thought--inspired by the thrill of the moment and several glasses of champagne to toast running 26 miles—that since I was still fairly healthy, what's another 50,000 miles?

Stupid champagne-inspired thought.

The psychological countdown to 150,000 miles started when I still had 3,000 miles left to run. In my prime 3,000 miles would amount to seven or eight months of running; now it's closer to 10 or 11. That's a lot of days to be counting down. But I picked up the pace a bit after retiring and managed to run nearly 1,800 miles in my first 23 weeks of retirement, none more difficult than the 115 miles I ran two weeks ago. I've always lived by my 'run to exhaustion' philosophy and I'll be honest: I don't think I've ever been more exhausted than I was after that week, no doubt a case study on the effects of aging on the long-distance runner.

Those 115 miles put me in position so this week I could take it a little bit easier. And now today, August 19, 2018, that second magical day is finally here. One hundred and fifty thousand lifetime miles. 150,005 to be exact.

Thinking back to almost 40 years ago when I ran my very first mile in Gainesville, Florida, I could have never imagined I would have stayed with it this long. Looking back there have been too many indelible memories to count, but here are some of those that immediately come to mind:

- Fifty-mile runs that felt like a stroll in the park, and three-mile runs that I thought would never end.
- Finishing first in a handful of races and finishing dead last in a couple others, none of the latter more memorable—or honorable than the 2006 Western States 100-Mile Endurance Run on a day so challenging that half of the starters failed to finish.
- Running on days I felt like I could run forever and running on days that I didn't think I could take another step...not even the first one.
- Running 40 consecutive Peachtree Road Races and starting with the elite runners for a dozen or so years in a row and starting at the very back of the pack that one time just to see what it was like it was miserable.
- Running the Boston Marathons 12 times, a race I never imagined I could qualify for. Thirteen if you count the year I ran the course from the finish to the start prior to running the actual marathon in 2003. Incidentally it was my 100th lifetime marathon.
- Running my 200th (and what I said would be my last) marathon in Honolulu in 2012. Cindy met me at the finish line as she had done for my first marathon in Gainesville almost 33 years earlier. (I don't think she saw me finish any of the 198 marathons in between those two. I could be wrong, but I doubt it.) For reasons I can't explain there have been seven more 'last' marathons since then.
- Running with my younger son Josh in his first race and then, more than 25 years later running with my grandson Krischan in his first race.

- Being in 9th on the original (consecutive days running) streak list in the mid-90's, running every day since and working my way up to...22nd.
- Attempting to run 280 miles across Georgia in 1982, only to quit on the fourth day because my legs didn't agree with running on the same side of the road for 159 miles. Then trying again a decade later, only this time I made it. In six days.
- Completing my personal 'grand slam' consisting of the JFK 50, Badwater, Western States and Comrades. Granted, some weren't necessarily as pretty as the others.
- Running 100 miles or longer 14 times. A little part of me is whispering just one more time. Then again, a bigger and much louder part of me is shouting don't even think about it.
- Passing the torch—the torch of the distances I used to love running--to my good friend and talented runner Ferit Toska in 2013, Ferit didn't disappoint, winning the prestigious Tallahassee Ultra Distance Classic 50-Miler later that year...and the next two years after that.

Today's run was nothing special—a simple 14-mile run along the country roads of Senoia—but the company certainly was. Running with me were AI, Valerie and Antonio (the usual suspects) and the four of us momentarily stopped when I reached my 150,000th mile—give or take a few yards—along a stretch of Dead Oak Road where my grandson and I pick up trash every now and then. Sadly, Ferit wasn't with us; he's in Turkey where I will meet up with him in November and run the Istanbul Marathon. Incidentally this one will be my last marathon, and I swear I'm only doing it because Ferit asked me to. Cross my heart and hope to die.

This reminds me that I have one more count down left. On November 30, 103 days from today, I will have completed my 40th consecutive year of running every day. Part of me wants to be like Forrest Gump: stop and say I'm pretty tired and I think I'll go home now.

Then again I know another part of me—the louder part will tell me to keep on doing what I've been doing for the last 40 years: Lace 'em up and run.

Coach Tom Sisulak

"10th Year Celebration of Consecutive Daily Running on June 23, 2018" By Coach Thomas F. Sisulak "Coach Tom" of Riverside, Illinois

I have essentially been Running my entire life. As soon as I could walk and then Run, my father, Frank S. Sisulak, taught me how to do exercises, while still sitting in a high chair and only several months old!

The family story as told to me many times by my mother, Amy, was that when we would visit my Heltzel Family Grandparents on their Family Farm in Akron, Indiana. My Dad placed me in the wooden high chair for supper and then to show-off my Dad's Athletic Abilities and Coaching Abilities, he would tell me at the age of only several months old, "Tommy Exercise!" I would immediately begin doing my Arm and Shoulder Movements, while sitting in that wooden high chair!

As the months and first few years went by, I learned to Run, play Catch, and Swim before the age of 3 years old. This New Freedom to Run and to Exercise has continued through Kindergarten, Grade School, Junior High, High School, College, and many decades of Teaching and Coaching!

My very first Indoor Track competition was as a Freshman in 1961-62 at Riverside Brookfield High School, Riverside, Illinois.

I can still remember my Dad taking me to the local sports shop, where he bought my very first pair of black canvas cloth, with crepe shoe soles, Converse running shoes. Then for Outdoor Track my Dad and I selected my very first pair of Track spike shoes. An all leather pair of Karhu spike shoes. White leather with three blue and red stripes from the laces down to the solid leather shoe soles, which contained six metal spikes that were 7/8" inches long, each!

After graduating from Carthage College in Kenosha, Wisconsin, where I competed in Cross-Country, Gymnastics, and Track all four years, I signed a contract to teach mathematics at West Aurora High School in Aurora, Illinois. Also, to be the Assistant Coach for Cross Country, Indoor Track, and Outdoor Track. The weekly average was 60 to 70 hours of teaching and coaching, not counting the extra 2 to 3 hours of planning every night. Just to be prepared for the next day. All for a grand total of $8000 each year!

My teaching and coaching career still continues, following two years at West Aurora H.S., thirty one years at Madison LaFollette H.S. in Wisconsin, five years at Riverside Brookfield H.S., four years at Concordia University Chicago, and now my own Riverside Sports Academy in Riverside, Illinois.

Throughout these many years, I have been running regularly each year and competing as well!

Then back on June 23, 2008, I made the personal decision to run each and every day for as long as possible!

The 10th Year celebration of consecutive daily running was reached on June 23, 2018. WOW! That specific Daily Run really felt great! Running in hot weather, cold weather, rain, snow, sleet, during injuries, during Illness, and during indoor runs. We all know the daily challenges! However, the many personal, physical, social, and psychological benefits make each and every daily run, so special and so rewarding!

During the past fifty-seven years of running, competitions, and coaching, I have totaled several hundred races from the 100 yard dash in high school to the full marathon race!

Last October 7th, 2017, I was very fortunate to complete my 70th marathon race at the age of 70 years old! That includes 40 running marathons and 30 cross-country skiing marathons for the grand total of 70 marathon races!

The accompanying photos are from the 2017 Chicago Marathon Expo and from my living room showing my 10 consecutive running record log books, plus Log Book #11 and a few earlier running log books.

Whenever, I Cross-Country Ski or Ski Race or Kayak or Canoe or Bike Ride, that part of my daily workout is always followed by the most important segment, which is my consecutive daily run. Currently, my minimum daily run is 3.0 miles and my longest daily run is 27.0 miles!

I am so very thankful and very blessed to be able to run each and every day!

I pray each day that the "Good Lord" will help me to keep running for as long as possible into the future!

Most Sincerely, Coach Tom Sisulak Active Daily Streak Runner #188 As of July 24, 2018

A HINDRANCE OR NOT? --George A. Hancock runnergah@comcast.net

I frequently write about the forces that influence our running programs. The number one influence is the weather. My last column in The Streak Registry discussed this point. Weather is all around us. The daily streak runner needs to be in tune or aware of Mother Nature's natural influence.

The quickest way to end your lengthy running streak is to go running without checking the local weather. A weather aware runner is guaranteed numerous trouble free miles. Our carefree perhaps careless streak runner is likely to encounter some weather with mixed results.

Recently, several hail storms made the news. One storm in particular caused severe damage to the region around the Cheyenne Mountain Zoo located in Colorado Springs, Colorado. 14 individuals were injured in this storm featuring baseball sized hail. Two zoo animals were also killed in the storm. And, at least 300 vehicles were severely damaged.

Just imagine if you were outside running your daily streak miles. A sizeable hail chunk could kill you or at least cause serious physical damage. The streak runner simply stated needs to remain weather aware. However, are there other factors that may slow or curtail your daily streak? What about clothing? Can we classify running clothes as a possible running streak hindrance?

What? How can our high tech running gear be considered a running streak hindrance? Our new generation of Dri-fit clothing insures our long distance miles remain trouble free. The hard toiling runner remains warm and dry while wearing this new road gear.

Even during winter's icy cold blasts the streak runner remains on track to complete the daily streak miles. Our shoes and running gear do help us during winter's long night. That arctic scene remains but the winter miles are recorded in our journals. However, there is one element that does need examined.

We need a detailed examination into the current male running shorts. There is a growing thought that these longer male running shorts are hindering running performance. Male running shorts are longer and in many cases very baggy. This situation really seems to be a forced upon us fashion trend. There is no logical reason for these longer shorts.

Several analysts are questioning why male runners are wearing these shorts during road races. These longer than normal shorts are slowing the average runner's race finishing times. One has to wonder if anyone is seriously studying this detail. Slower road race finish times are noted by many veteran road runners. Today many road races have winning times that decades ago would not have earned an age group award.

Many of these new young male runners are wearing these baggy longer shorts. It is very possible these young male runners are clueless. Many young people in numerous areas lack historical perspective. These young people are not taught or exposed to history. Running history is not something the average youngster studies in our current school system.

I noticed at track meets and cross-country events that high school coaches are sporting these longer male shorts. So, the young male athlete is clueless about the possible negative side effects while wearing longer knee length shorts. The coaching staff is wearing them too.

Many young adult runners are coming to road races from the recreation field. Long male shorts dominate recreation sports. So, wearing baggy long shorts during a running excursions is considered normal.

There are very few if any coaches around from my era. I graduated from college in 1975. That was 43-years ago. Those coaches, those educators retired years ago. The training methods, techniques and yes even clothing styles from that timeframe have faded into obscurity.

My recently published book My Running Odyssey by the Daily American has a unique cover design. The publisher chose three different running pictures of me racing across a wide time spectrum. The first picture is from 1984. The second is a 1986 race. The third picture is from October of 2017.

Numerous individuals and running friends have commented about the short shorts and long socks. The 1984 and 1986 pictures show thigh length shorts. These were the standard length running shorts in that era. The third 2017 picture depicts shorts just a tad longer. However, I'm wearing compression pants which make those shorts seem longer. I started wearing compression pants several years ago. I wear compression pants year round.

The socks are a different story. I started road running in 1973. I wore knee length socks on many runs. I also raced in these socks. Today many runners wear compression socks. These are the same length as knee socks although more colorful today.

Crew length socks are what I wore while running and racing. They were white 100% of the time. Ankle length socks did not appear for me until the early 1990's. These socks never hindered my running performance. Socks are and were a non-issue.

Running shorts are another matter. Those prevalent long and baggy shorts are hampering running performance. The extra length and material is slowing runners down. I'm wondering how many male runners are hampered on rainy or sweaty humid long runs.

The baggy shorts once wet tend to droop. Although low drooping shorts in some circles are a fashion style, runners are slowed by these baggy garments.

Windy days no doubt create an unnatural pull or drag on these long fashionable shorts. Windy days are another instance of long shorts hampering performance.

And I see many runners wearing long cotton style shorts in races. Cotton was a staple in my early running days. However, our clothing evolved into our outstanding Dri-Fit running gear. Cotton was replaced by this more running advanced clothing.

So, we are left with this odd question. Do these longer baggy shorts hamper male runner athletic performance? We need to point out that our elite runners are not wearing these "fashionable garments." Nor, are female runners wearing similar running gear. In fact, female running shorts are shrinking.

These long baggy shorts are favored by numerous male recreation runners. Maybe these shorts are worn due to limited choices. Or, these are worn because that male runner does not have a good reference point. I recently purchased new running shorts that don't extend to my knees.

Now for me, buying denim shorts is tricky. Denim and dress shorts are all knee length. Why? What purpose does this serve? I'm a lifelong runner. I can and do wear shorts. Why should my shorts resemble knickers? I'll let Mark explain knickers. [Editor's note: Merriam-Webster Dictionary defines knickers as, "loose-fitting short pants gathered at the knee."]

Are long baggy shorts a fashion faux pas that should concern male streak runners or male road racers? We need more research, study and evidence on this point.

Traversing the Tundra Consistently at High Mileage By: Steve DeBoer

Before commencing with the latest Tundra topic, I must apologize to VT streak runners for suggesting they have no individuals active in doing it daily. I meant RI, as VT has 4 currently on the run every day – Francis Garrow (13 years), Kevin Barber (6 years), Daniel Bruce and William Kelly (both at 2 years). Guess I need a proof reader.

It was over 3 years ago that I tallied up the number of years many of our streak runners (who keep track of their mileage and have run over 70,000 lifetime miles) have surpassed 2000, 3000, 4000, and 5000 miles. So it must be time for an UPDATE, again using the names on that 70,000 mile list. If you have run a minimum of 26 years over 2000 miles or 13 years over 3000 miles, or 6 years over 4000 miles, let me know and I will add your name to future UPDATES.

Bruce Mortenson (MN) had his first running streak (about 6 months long) in 1965 and has had 5 that made it to one year. His current one (since 2011) is his longest. But he has run more than 2000 miles (8 years between 2000-2499) every year since 1960, just after his 16th birthday. His lifetime miles were over 175,200 by the end of 2017.

Steve DeBoer (MN) has run at least 2000 (all years over 2500) miles each year since age 17 (1972) and at least 3000 miles since age 20. His minimum 1-mile per day streak began June 1971 (3rd longest in the world), though he ran shorter distances daily since July 1970. He has never run over 4000 miles in one year but had completed over 160,400 through 2017.

Herb Fred (TX) did not start running until his late 30s but ran more documented miles than anyone in the world by the time he stopped running in October 2016 at age 87 (253,010 miles). He ran over 2000 miles yearly from age 39 to age 84 (tied for 2nd on the list), over 3000 miles age 41-81 (2nd on list), and has run over 4000 (39 years), 5000 (28 years), and 6000 (16 years) miles than anyone else. Carolyn Mather (SC) is 2nd with 15 years over 6000, and tied with Herb at 7 years over 7000. Her lifetime mileage through 2017 is over 210,000.

Stuart Calderwood (NY) is tied for 4th place for years running at least 2000 miles and in 3rd place for years running at least 3000 miles. His first year over 2000 (also over 3000 and 4000) was 1973 (age 15), as a high school sophomore, where, as he describes it, his insane coach made them run twice daily – he even has a day listed where he ran 25 miles. Through 2012, all but 2 years were over 3000, and through 2016, all were over 2000 (dropped below 2000 in 2017). He had completed over 149,000 miles as 2017 ended.

Jon Sutherland (CA), also tied for 4th place running 2000 or more miles, has the longest daily running streak in the world since Ron Hill (England) retired his streak in January 2017, passing the 49-year mark in May this year. He first ran over 2000 miles in 1968 (age 17), and has been over 2500 all but 6 of those years (1968-2013). He has been under 2000 miles the last 4 years and had covered over 195,100 miles at the close of 2017.

Alex Galbraith (TX) has also run over 2000 miles for 44 years (including 38 years in a row), having first done that at age 17 in 1968. He has been running daily since December 1971, which gives him the 4th longest streak in the world. He has traversed over 114,800 miles up to the end of 2017.

Larry Baldasari (NJ) is the 4th person tied for 4th, running over 2000 for 44 years. He first surpassed 2000 miles in 1973, age 23, and has done so every year since except 2011, when he had some major issues with his back. There have been several years between 2000 and 2500, but he got over 2500 last year, at which time his lifetime mileage total was over 125,600.

(1) Not a streak runner but has over 200,000 miles running lifetime.

PS. I continue to run daily, reaching my 47th anniversary of daily runs 1 mile or longer on June 7th, and my 48th anniversary running daily on July 20th. The latter was an untimed easy 5.5 miles as I "rested" for a 5Km race the next morning, another personal worst road time, outkicked by an 11-year-old, whom I had worked hard to finally catch up to. Afterwards I asked him why he didn't let me beat him, to which he responded, "I'm competitive!"

PPS. While on vacation, I went to Fergus Falls the morning of July 28th and ran 1-5 miles with ten streak runners who live there or in nearby Detroit Lakes (Stacey Smith). This included all 6 runners in the Thorson family (Mike, Beth and their 4 kids, Oliver, Jenna, Natalie and 8-year-old Lauren). Others involved were Tim & Jen Mathiesen; Jess Knutson (Jess had just finished running a triathlon, winning her age group). For those who have read previous articles I have written for the newsletter, you will know that Fergus Falls has the highest concentration of streak runners of any town in the world with a population over 10,000. The other two (for a total of 11, which works out to 826 daily runners per million population) are Gordy Strickland (who now lives in Rochester, MN) and Craig Davidson (who now lives in Phoenix, AZ). At age 13, Oliver Thorson has already run through a broken foot. Jess Knutson mentioned that with 5 children and starting up a new business, there were 2 ways to deal with the stress – drugs or exercise! Fortunately, she chose to run every day. When people ask him if he might stop running today, Stacey gave the classic answer for those of us who procrastinate – maybe tomorrow.

PPPS. Returning home from vacation, the evening of July 28th, I got the sad news from my Minnesota Twin in streak running, Steve Gathje, that he had to end almost 46 years of daily runs (5th longest ever in the US) on July 27th, due to arthritis in his hip that will require replacement surgery. He is the first American to end a running streak after 45 years, Mark Covert being the previous record-holder at exactly 45 years. I have been writing "Traversing the Tundra" articles for the Streak Association newsletter since 2006 and mentioned my first "run" with Steve in that first article:

Steve Gathje and I (we would have had the #10 and #7 longest streaks at the time) ran a 20km race together in Rochester, Minnesota (he being a native of that city, I transplanted there in 1987), in April 1989. He finished  $8^{th}$  in 1:13:44, while I tied for  $9^{th}$  in 1:13:52. Our combined streaks at that time were about  $34 \frac{1}{2}$  -years total.

At that time, Mark Covert and Jon Sutherland had the longest combined days of daily runs by 2 individuals in the same state (CA), which reached 89 years and 2 months, when Mark "retired" in 2013. Steve & I made it to just under 93 years, a new record that will probably be broken as Jon Sutherland and Charles Lindsey (CA) are at 89 years 11 months, with Alex Galbraith & Bill Anderson (TX) close behind at 88 years 5 months. I feel privileged to have gotten to know this kind, gentle man and wish Steve the very best in this next chapter of his life with wife Laurie, family and friends.

PPPPS. When Mandi Pulls registered her 3 year running streak the end of July, she became the 150th Minnesotan identified who has run at least one mile daily for 365 days or longer!!

THEA CERIO JOINS USRSA

I finally decided to formally recognize my streak with the group after 523 days. I began running in college to take off the Freshman, Sophomore AND Junior 15. Though I was consistent with exercise in all those years it was never my cardio of choice until after I had my first child.

In 2010, I started running distances longer than 3-miles, ran my first 5K, first 15K and hooked on to my first half marathon and marathon.

At the end of 2016, I was in a running funk. I was doing it, but not joyfully. I decided I needed a new goal, and decided to run at least one mile every day for the upcoming year. When 2017 ended (after running a mile in -25 degrees), I just decided to keep going. I'm currently running 50-60 miles a week, with my eyes set on another marathon in October.

JENNIFER RYITER'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 1,258 DAYS

My streak has ended due to long standing back and hip problems. I recently had a new diagnosis on the hip and am receiving treatment. For now, the hip was just too painful to continue.

SARA SHARPE'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 880 DAYS

Unfortunately, I broke my ankle running a race up a mountain. I am beyond sad that this streak has to end. But, I will be back at it as soon as I heal. I'll get that comma one way or another.

LEE BERG'S STREAK HITS 18 YEARS

Last summer was the 40th anniversary of my first '500 Mile Club' at Venice High School... so I did at least 5 miles every day (100 days). I continued that for 8 months. Hadn't done that in a while. There were 4 local '40th Anniversary' 5K/10K's in So. Cal. over the last year (Palisades Will Rogers, Manhattan Beach, Venice Christmas Run and Redondo Beach Super Bowl), so I ran all four. I also swam in my 33rd consecutive annual Pier to Pier Swim (2 miles, Hermosa Beach to Manhattan Beach).

JEREMY DOODY'S STREAK HITS 17 YEARS

Indeed the streak continues--17 years! The biggest news in my life is I became a father just over 6 weeks ago. It's been an amazing experience and have been able to find the balance to continue the streak. I had goals of maintaining it through the labor and birth, but wasn't sure if baby boy's timing would agree, as the most important thing was being there for my wife and new son. As luck would have it, the timing was right, my wife had enough family support at one point so told me to go get my shorts and shoes out of the trunk of my car in the parking lot and get it in! I very much appreciate(d) her support throughout all that she's went through but she knows it's important to me.

While my fitness isn't great as of late, as obvious new priorities taking importance, but still enjoying some shorter runs lately but still trying to stay somewhat competitive on the local Strava segments!

As much as I like to do X miles for X years to usually celebrate, as mentioned before my fitness isn't quite there for that yet. So instead I opted for 17 fartlek pickups/sprints in the middle of my 4 mile run. The sun was out and it was a beautiful and breezy 70° here in mid-Michigan.

Perhaps another thing worth mentioning that is now a part of my story is that I was diagnosed with Crohn's Disease in the spring of 2015. It was the closest I had been in a long time to calling it quits on the streak due to poor heath reasons and general ongoing and worsening malaise prior to being diagnosed, but in the end I think running helped me feel a little better even on the worst of days. I had quite a few 7-10 mile weeks at one point as I just squeaked by streak-saver after streak-saver as I fought to figure out what was going wrong with my body. In the end the little runs always made me feel at least little better. Although I am not letting it define who I am or what I do, it is very much a part of my story and how many aspects of my lifestyle are determined, as it has been a lot of work to reach and remain in remission. Every day it must be worked on, much like my running streak.

I appreciate the shout-out. The Facebook group is always great motivation and encouragement. It's great to be in such great company.

SARAH MADAIO'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

I never would have guessed I would ever run let alone streak run! Streak running is literally one of my best accomplishments and something I take the most self pride in. It has made such a huge difference in my life and I am forever grateful for a streaker friend to get me involved in streaking (Maria Ramirez Gorton).

If you had asked me when I started why I was running, I would have said to lose weight and to exercise. Today I would tell you that it is the best way to start my day with clarity in my thoughts and I begin my run by thinking of at least 10 things I am grateful for.

Over the last year, I have gone from running a 12 minute mile to less than 11 minute mile. While I try not to be too hard on myself for being a turtle, this has been an amazing accomplishment for me!

JOHN KRAJEWSKI JOINS USRSA

I have been an active runner since I ran my first half marathon in 2007. Since then, I have run 14 marathons and probably just as many official half marathons. In recent years, work travel and parenting has gotten in the way of training for longer races. But, I have discovered since my streak began in March 2017 that one can run a mile pretty easily and in some odd places if it is absolutely necessary.

Since my streak began, I have run at least a mile in eight different countries, at least 12 different states and even two different airports (Note: an airport lounge membership where they have a shower helps a lot in this regard). It has been fun waiting for midnight at times because I would not have any other time the next day or trying to figure out when I can squeeze ten minutes in when I am busy in and out of meetings.

I have been very lucky to stay healthy over this period, and have lost about 20 pounds since I started (still another 20 to go to get to where I was when I was running marathons). I have mixed in some longer runs and could probably run a half-marathon if I had to. I'm looking forward to squeezing that mile in for as long as I stay healthy!

My run streak is alive and well and I can't see it retiring any time soon. It's become my "rock" in my daily life, the constant through the days that I can rely on for strength, de-stress, reflection. Here is an update on my previous year of running!

Over the course of the last year of my run streak had me participating in my first marathon, the Soldier Marathon at Fort Benning, Trail Running through Pine Mountain during a backpacking trip, and paying my respects to Bruce & Brandon Lee during a run in Seattle which took me past where they were laid to rest. One of the many reasons I enjoy my run streak is the opportunity to meet new streakers, visit places, honor people, and keeping in good physical and mental health.

My runstreak will go on. I use it as base training for my ultrarunning and recovery. It also helps me keep sane during stressfull times at work.

When travelling, either privately or through work my runstreak takes me on running adventures. Just this past year I have been running in Copenhagen - Denmark, Gothenburg - Sweden, Madrid and Denia - Spain, Lisbon - Portugal, besides Oslo, Norway my native city.

At least once a week I run to work. Every Friday we are 2-3 women who celebrate the end of the week by running together to work. I find that transportation running is a very effective way of travelling to work and get the training done when my free time is scarce or limited. Morning runs are my favourite.

My streak is still going, thanks mostly to a very understanding wife who keeps our kids entertained while I sneak away to get a few miles in whenever and wherever we are. I'm approaching 15 years now in a streak that includes 7 moves, 20+ trips to Europe/Asia, 7 marathons, and adding 3 kids to our family. We're moving to Germany for the next couple years, so I guess that means I'll have to transfer my membership from USRSA to SRI until we move back to the States (haha!!).

I'm also attaching a photo from a 10K that I ran up in the mountains of NC this past weekend (June 16th).

SANDRA ORLANDO'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 716 DAYS

Unfortunately, you're going to have to move me to the retired list. Had a sharp pain in my right knee while out running earlier in the week and had to walk home (never needed to do that, before!) Went to the doctor and he ordered no running for at least 2 to 3 weeks. He is also a physio and and ultra-runner, so I have taken his advice. My last running day was Friday [22 June 2018], which, by my reckoning, was RSD 716.

I'm a bit gutted, but the knee has been troubling me since last summer, so if I had more sense I would probably have rested it long ago!

SUSIE STRACHOTA'S STREAK HITS 4 YEARS; KEEPS STREAK ALIVE THROUGH BIRTH OF HER SON

Although running is such a part of my life now that I can't imagine what it was like when I didn't get out there everyday. The last year has been quite a year for me. A month before my 3-year streak anniversary I got married.

The day after I got back from my honeymoon my husband and I moved to Florida, so this year I've done a lot of running in Florida. I can honestly say I'd rather run through the polar vortex than another Florida summer. It's so hot and humid here!

In addition to moving I had a baby, defended my dissertation, remodeled a house, moved from an apartment to a new house, and now I'm moving again (to Ohio in August). Like I said it's been quite the year.

There have been so many changes, but running is my constant. It's the one thing that I do no matter what else I do or where I am that day. One event that had a significant effect on my running was pregnancy and childbirth. I actually enjoyed running through my pregnancy, and I kept a good pace--at 40 weeks I proudly ran an 8 minute mile.

Just like everyday, the morning my son was born I got up and ran. My labor slowly started after my run, and then I was induced that afternoon. My son was born that night at 10:19pm, and I ran the next evening. It was the most difficult run of my life. I was surprised at how easy it was to run when I was pregnant, and how difficult it was to run after I had the baby. I ran very slowly for about a week, and then I felt like I could pick up the pace. I was only running a mile for a while (about a month), and then I slowly increased my distance and speed. Now I'm back to my regular 3-mile route and feel great!

Happy running!

I also brought a daughter into the world this year. Baby Hadley joined us in April. Streaking during pregnancy and while having contractions is no joke! Mommy and baby did well and the streak lived on. I am now a stroller streaker and baby loves going for runs. Shooting for my comma this year.

DANNY WESTFAHL'S STREAK HITS A DECADE

As I reflect on the last decade, I wonder what made me start this streak. As an avid runner, swimmer and triathlete, I always had goals. Finishing marathons, placing in sprint and Olympic distance triathlons, completing an Ironman were all goals that I had prior to The Streak.

Alongside these athletic goals were personal goals as well . . . start a family, provide for them, complete my doctoral degree, and find success in my work as a teacher and school administrator. Finding time to do these things simultaneously was nearly impossible, and doing them well was inconceivable. What I realized I could do, however, was maintain a family, a job, and a running streak all at once.

I woke up on the morning of June 26, 2008 and said, "Today is the day." Ten years later, here I am!

The streak has taken me to three countries, at least fifteen states, the international adoption of our third daughter, the completion of my Ph.D., and the successful transition from first grade classroom teacher to school principal.

I have run in the mountains of Colorado, the monuments of Washington DC, the beaches of Florida and South Carolina, and the Great Wall of China.

I have graduated from running one mile per day to attempting to complete 2000 miles this year.

I have run through three surgeries, a broken collar bone, countless sprained ankles, and zero sicknesses.

Only 5% of these runs have taken place on a treadmill, whereas the remaining 95% have been outside on trails, tracks, sidewalks and roads.

I have run in temperatures as hot as 115 degrees in Wuhan, China, as well as -60 degrees in Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

Most of these runs occur in the early morning, and I have been fortunate to observe the sun come up over the Atlantic Ocean and Lake Michigan, and each time I am struck by the wonder of our earth and the gifts that God has given us. This would not be possible without His guidance, His care, His forgiveness, and the abilities He has given us to glorify His name.

I look forward to what the next ten years will bring, and to read the inspiring stories of the other "streakers" out there!

CORY BOMBERGER'S STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

My running streak is still going and I look forward to continuing it for quite awhile. I am still living in Portland, OR and am an engineer as listed on your page. I have joined the Oregon Road Runners Club and as part of the club I am participating in 2 things that help keep me going. 1st is a half marathon series which involves 5 or 6 half marathons over the year. The other is the 1200-miles club, where the goal is to run 1200-miles in a year. Last year I met that goal without any problem so this year I set a personal goal of 2000 miles. So on most days I end up running 5 or more miles.

I am not sure what all you include in your newsletter but I figured I could also include why I started my streak. I started the streak 1 year to the day before my wedding as kind of a count down, as the wedding day came and went it was now just part of my life and could not imagine not doing it. Over the last 5 years I have run at all hours of the day, including getting up at 2 or 3 to run before a day of flying/travel to running at 11:45pm after a long day of work or repairs on our house.

Very pleased to report that the running streak is staying strong along with competing in 10-20 races of varying distances and disciplines from 5Ks to triathlons and duathlons every year!

After last completing an IRONMAN in 2012 with my wife Amy, I crossed the IRONMAN Wisconsin finish line last September 2017 in 12 Hours 27 Minutes! I am currently training for the 2018 edition and hope to complete at least 1 each year until I reach 12 finishes!

On the professional side I was blessed to take on a new position with Bellin Health at their new Clinic in Marinette, WI. Using my Master's Degree in Exercise Physiology from UW-La Crosse (2008) I was able to successfully start a brand new Phase II Cardiac Rehabilitation program where I have the immense opportunity to motivate and guide patients after their heart procedures. I have now put on successfully my 2nd fundraising 5k – 'MS is BS 5k' in Long Beach, California. It is both exhausting and rewarding- all the work that goes into the event but great to raise money for a cause I am obviously partial to!

ANDREW LAUER'S STREAK HITS 7 YEARS

It it hard to believe it has been 7 years since I began my running streak and fortunate to be able to keep it going. This past year has been one of the tougher ones for me in many facets of life. I had to deal with a number of large work issues that have significantly taken time away from my ability to train and take care of health. It has required some travel, mostly international. In addition, I have been dealing with a lot of back, hip, and hamstring pain - after seeing a PT specialist for several months, we concluded it was mainly due to stress, sitting for 12-15 hours a day, giving myself very little sleep, and attempting to run hard for 10-15 miles a day.

While I have been forced to dial back on the training, I am starting to get back on track with solid weeks of consistent miles. Through the challenges, the streak kept me motivated to fight through. I certainly didn't average 10+ miles per day this past year, but have kept it going. I always had the goal in mind to reach 10 years - there is still a very long way to go but glad to have gone through a rough year like this now. I really encourage all of our fellow streak runners to take care of their sleep and make sure it is as important to you as a good meal or drinking water.

JAY KAMMERZELL'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 2,223 DAYS

Regrettably I am reporting the end of another streak. I did go on to your new improved website and posted it there but thought I'd follow up with an email.

I have always told myself I would "not" run if I thought it would do more harm than good and that is how I felt today.

The circumstances: Friday I was sitting on the floor with my one-month old granddaughter. She is our first grandchild and a real sweetheart. I went to stand up while holding her (a bit awkward because her head needs to be supported) my right knee popped and as I went to put weight on the knee I was met with extreme pain. A second later it seemed to pop back. I was able to put weight on it after that.

Yesterday it was sore so I ran only one mile. Today it is visibly swollen and very tender. Much worse. I will take some time off, do the usual, ice, ibuprofen, and elevation.

We'll see how it goes. I can always start another streak! I have been averaging 2.9 miles per day since the beginning of the year.

This streak lasted from 6-27-2012 through 7-28-2018. I've been hoping to surpass 70,000 lifetime miles which will take a couple more years. I hope this will heal quickly.

Thanks again for keeping up the website for us crazy runners who like to run every day.

KATHY CHASE'S STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

I originally started running a streak on January 1, 2012. I actually ran 525 consecutive days and then I crashed on my bike while competing in a triathlon and broke my collarbone. The doctor said I would have to take 12 weeks off from running after my surgery! Of course, that didn't work for me, I was running again within 5 weeks and I restarted my current streak on August 5, 2013.

Since then, I have run over 6,515 miles. I've run outside in temps over 100 degrees and below freezing, I've run when I was sick and with injuries, at sunrise and after dark with a headlamp, in the mountains and in the desert, on the beach in Hawaii and in the parking lot of the hotel while traveling! I will use the treadmill, but only if I have no other option!

As every streak runner knows, 'through weather, injury, illness, and life events, we run everyday.' Running is part of who I am now and I will keep going as long as I possibly can.

RICHARD HORVITZ'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 1,306 DAYS

I am writing to let you know that after 3 vears 6 months and 29 days I was forced to stop running. An extremely painful lower back strain has knocked me out. I was able to manage my run on the 29th hoping it would loosen me enough to continue forward. However it did the opposite and made it worse. So unfortunately the 29th of July was my final run of this streak. Hoping and praying this recovery is quick I will get back out there in the next few weeks. Yesterday was a tough day knowing I couldn't run, but what doesn't kill us makes us stronger, and I will come back stronger and more determined the next time. Thank you for running this organization and the people in it for helping me to realize new goals. Having run an ultra was exciting and it can never be taken away from me. I know I can go further and longer and I will be determined to come back and show myself I can. Thank you all for inspiration!!!!

JOHN WINOWIECKI'S STREAK HITS 6 YEARS

So happy to have another year in the books. Also excited to begin work on my seventh year running daily with this incredible group.

The consistency continues paying off, and this year I saw a significant improvement in my overall pace. On top of statistical improvements, life lessons keep surfacing as the miles keep stacking up. Lately I've been noticing the subtle impacts of running without intensity and purpose. On occasion I'll find myself running without fervor or clear intent. When I do, I'll often catch myself suffering from poor form. In other words, I get lazy. In a practical way this awareness reminds me of the importance for us to be intentional in our daily lives.

Aside from running, I've seen the ill effects of being careless in different areas of my life. Whether in my work, relationships, personal care, without vision and the intentionality that comes with seeing and accepting purpose, I am incredibly susceptible to living well below my potential.

Concerning running, I certainly don't expect to race hard and fast everyday. I give myself opportunities to purposefully take it easy on a regular basis. On those days, when I intentionally run more casually, the result is often refreshing. My form doesn't seem to suffer since I'm being intentional. As in life, we need our down time, our rest. We just need to make sure we're being intentional about it and taking rest appropriately. If we're resting when we should be forging ahead, we may be in danger of undermining our progress. Now it's time to look to the days ahead, with the aim of being more consistently committed and intentional in all things!

EVGENY SIROTYUK JOINS SRI; FIRST STREAK RUNNER FROM RUSSIA

Hello, my name is Eugene. I started running from December 1, 2016. I just love running. At first I ran a little: 10 km, 20 km. Then there was a marathon. The marathon became my favorite distance, several times I ran 100 km. Now I am preparing for a 24-hour race.

My distances are constantly increasing. One day I decided that there was not much to increase the distance, I had to come up with something interesting, and I decided to run every day. First it was hard, but now running has become a habit, I just go out and run. I always run on the street, I never use a treadmill. I run in all kinds of weather, in the rain, in the frost, in the heat. I cannot imagine my life without running.

I'm writing with an interpreter. Edit my story a bit to read it correctly. Thank you.

MATS SODERGREN JOINS SRI FROM SWEDEN

I have always been doing some kind of sports. Started with running late, at age of 30 something. The goal was to run 10 km. I ended up running a race over that distance and I was caught. I started to measure everything: pace, distance, altitude, pulse and so on. Next goal half Marathon, did 3-4 races. Have never been that fast guy, but I liked distance. Next a tough Swedish terrain race over 30 km was checked off the list.

In 2005 I ran my first full marathon in Stockholm, did it again three times. Early 2016 the next goal was in Sigth, Swiss Alpine Ultra Marathon in the summer 2017.

In November I got some health problems keeping me from running for over a year. After a time of recovery my wife told me about something she read on internet, runstreak. She showed me a Swedish Facebook page, runstreak2018. So 1th januari 2018 we looked up my old running shoes and I made my first day, very slow and not so pretty.

Since then I kept running every day, about a month ago made my first 10km for one and a half year.

Now I've left the watch, pulse meter, and goals at home, running the pace and distance as I feel for that day, and I enjoy every second of it. Looking forward to day 365.

MERCY MUROLO'S NEW STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

I appreciate your note. I would never remember my dates without you & my brother, Fred! If it were not for my injuries I would be at 25 years ~ wild. Lately (although I am 67) I have been running 8-13 miles daily... not certain if I am trying to prove something to myself or just attempting to make my soft flesh harden up a bit and some muscles look more defined.

California is a challenge, as the air is tainted by smoke and particles from one fire or another. Last October we actually evacuated and I ran wearing a mask.

I remember those hard copies of the registry ~ I think there are a few living in my garage. YOU ROCK.

JULIE VAN AMERONGEN'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

Among the many things I love about streakers and streak running is the constant reminder of consistent daily progress and the opportunity to celebrate milestones together. For me, at the completion of three years of my running streak there's more to celebrate than having run more days than Forest Gump at this point.

Chief among the reasons I celebrating is the re-release of my book Every. Single. Day - Unstoppable Wisdom from a Year of Running. As many of you have discovered, a relentless daily commitment something like running exercises not only our bodies but our consistency and dedication muscles and allows us to witness the accumulation of incremental progress towards something greater. In this book, I wrote about my daily runs and what it took to make them happen no matter where I was, what time zone I was in, through sand and snow, sickness and health, eager willingness and the days when I just didn't feel like it but did it anyway. As streakers come to know, I saw that achieving something like a year of running didn't have to be complicated or take a lot of time (though sometimes it money (remember, does) or doesn't have to!), or an overabundance of talent or experience.

I self-published this book more than a year ago and am now fortunate to have the support of a publisher making the book more widely available. The new edition comes out in August.

If the first year of my running streak was mainly about getting myself out the door no matter what came my way, the second year of the streak was really about running. I ran more than 30 races, joined a cross country team I really had no business being on and completed my first ultra marathon. I took a humbling and humorous look at the adventures of this second year of the streak in a new book entitled I Can Do Hard Things: How Small Steps Equal Big Impact.

One of the best things about having written about the streak is the people that have been inspired to take on a commitment of their own. I have heard from readers who have taken on their own challenges, like meditating every day for a year and, of course, the handfuls of friends and friends I've vet to meet, who've been inspired to take on the streak challenge for themselves to varying degrees of success. Whether you want to admit it or not, we streakers are an inspirational bunch and in a sense, my story is all of our stories. This is what we do. And this thing that we do can really illustrate the power that dedication to a personal practice can have on creating your optimal life.

Of all the things I'm proud of along this journey, I have to give kudos to my teenage son for having completed the first year of his running streak in December. As anvone dedication to a streak can be challenging but possibly none more so than for teenagers for whom life is often unpredictable and with many things calling for their attention. As streakers know, there are so many valuable lessons that can be learned from applying yourself consistently - let alone the fun we have running, and I love seeing these lessons taking hold in his young life. It sure hasn't hurt his crosscountry and track and field seasons one bit either!

At the end of these three plus years I find myself incredibly grateful for this community of streak runners. Thank you all for you modeling fantastic sportsmanship, camaraderie, humor, and support day after day and through all the running miles - slow and fast, long and short, together and never quite alone in this arena of support.

You can find Every.Single.Day and I Can Do Hard Things now on Amazon. I also post a photo a day of my feet wherever my daily run has taken me on Instagram. You can follow my adventures there on Instagram. Streak on!

FRANK CLARKE'S STREAK HITS 41 YEARS

I have been fortunate enough to have completed my 41 Consecutive years on the 9th of August. My consecutive days almost came to an untimely end as I had to be admitted to hospital for a bladder operation. Did my usual run in the early morning before being admitted, expecting to be released later in the day - got a little nervous when this did not transpire and I was kept in overnight, the end was insight when my surgeon decided that he was not going to release me and another night's stay was advisable.

Have not managed 41 years without a missing a day, and being as stubborn as a mule, I finally managed to find a doctor sympathetic to my cause, who promised to sign my release once I had decanted a pint. With this goal in mind, mission accomplished, and after a quick rest at home, went for my trot up the road with my daughter.

Let's hope the road for the next year remains relatively smooth, which at 82 is not as easy as it was at 42.

Frank Clarke Kloof, South Africa

NANCY WEST'S STREAK HITS 11 YEARS

Streak is going strong as I approach my 11-year streakaversary tomorrow [email dated 14 August 2018]. It's been a somewhat challenging year in that I "caved" -- sort of -- by becoming a treadmill runner for the first time in my life last January, but I know that's still valid by USRSA standards. I just never thought I'd do it, since I always considered contending with the weather to be part of the runstreak challenge. But our last New England winter was just too cold, snowy and icy -- and more significantly, we've moved recently, not far, but our new neighborhood does not have the empty country roads or nearly unused cul-de-sacs that our previous two addresses had, so it became much harder to get out of the traffic on slippery or snowy days. Running outside became just too hazardous this past winter. So now I mix it up, outside sometimes and treadmill sometimes, but always 3-5 miles, so I still feel good about that.

Other challenges from the past year included a bout of arthritis in one knee which I managed to run through -- it lasted about six weeks last spring but then went away altogether, for now -- and my first colonoscopy, which I also managed to work around. I guess that's one inevitability of a running streak -- the aging process happens right along with it! Nonetheless, the reduction in mileage that I took two years ago when I had posterior tibial tendinitis seems to have cured that problem as well as the sciatica I previously experienced now and then. Thanks for being in touch. Hope all is well with you and your running!

KEVIN OLIVER JOINS USRSA

I am Kevin Oliver from Rossville, Indiana. I just turned 50. I started running in 1997 after I was so out of shape I could not run the bases in adult softball without being winded and short of breath. What started as just a mere 300 yard run each day after work, would turn into longer and longer distances.

A few 5K's races along the way, I finally completed my first half marathon in 2012. I have since completed over 2 dozen half marathons, 2 dozen full marathons, a couple of ultras, and numerous half and full distance triathlons. I qualified for and ran my first Boston in 2016 and every year since.

My streak began with a friend and fellow streaker. I now cannot imagine a day without running. It is a great source of pride, full of great stories, memories, and accomplishments.

ANGELA SHERPRO'S STREAK HITS 4 YEARS

I cannot believe it's been 4yrs! Looking back I remember when I was trying to make a full year and was afraid of not making it! Look at me now! 4yrs!!! Within the last year I have made a job change and became a Head Start Teacher. I have realized that running before work is beneficial before tackling a day with children of all needs. I also got married! Everyone at the wedding kept saying, "Please tell me you did not keep your streak!" Boy were they shocked when I said I got up early on my wedding day to make sure I got my mile in :) This next year there are some changes coming and I hope to be able to continue my streak! Time will tell:)

BRUCE MORTENSEN'S STREAK HITS 7 YEARS

Yes, my streak is still going! As of this morning I am at 1517 miles for the year with the goal of hitting 2000 miles for the year. Happy to still be able to run as so many of my former friends and teammates are having health issues that prevent them from running. I am especially sad that Steve Gathje who I coached when he was in high school has had to end his streak.

PAUL TEMPLE'S STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

The streak is still going strong.

SAM JOHNSTON'S STREAK HITS 41 YEARS

Has the Struggle begun?

Year 41 is in the bag and now on to what is next. While I hope 42 is looming out there over the horizon it might be a tough slog. I had a close call this spring and I am now proceeding one day at a time. What in the world happened to a body that had never let me down. Something that is probably not surprising.

As I was finishing my run on the morning of 9 April, I started to do a little sprint that I always do at the end. Two steps into it my left knee screamed and brought me to a screeching halt. I had been experiencing some peculiar twinges in it for a while but they all seemed benign. I have had little annoyances at times with different body parts over the years but they would always go away. However, this felt a bit more serious.

I hobbled home and told my wife that my running might be over. I had made peace with that decision on the walk home and was ready to accept what 10 April would bring. The next morning, I went out and took two steps and the pain was excruciating. Yes, it seemed my streak was over.

Enter my friend, Pete. I have a neighbor who first told be about the USRSA and he is on the USRSA retired list with over 20 years. Every time I see Pete he always asks the same question. "Is the streak alive?" I have always told him he will be one of the first to know when it is over. He is an ultra-distance runner and when I contacted him to give him the bad news he was in North Carolina having just finished the Umstead 100 race that had been held that weekend. He replied back that he was flying home that afternoon and not to do anything until I saw him. When he arrived, he insisted that we go out and he would run with me. Did I mention that Pete can be unrelenting? I guess I am glad he is. I finally agreed to give it a go and he ran with me in his street clothes on a very hot, muggy April afternoon. I made it for 1.125 miles. The next morning I went out and did 1.25 miles. After that I settled in for a 2.5 mile run a each day. So the streak is alive!

Now for the bad news. I saw a sport orthopedic doctor and after an examination and an MRI he said those words we all dread; bone on bone. However, he said that with some cortisone and if I would not be too ambitious with my runs, I might last a couple of more years. I'll take it.

I have settled into running 1.3 miles a day (2K) and the walking 3.7 miles to give me an even 5 miles a day. I may bump my run to 1.5 miles and walk to 3.5 miles, but I am going to hold my OCD in check. I plan to keep on keeping on for as long as I can.

Yes, I will miss strapping on the Asics and wondering wherever my feet would take me, but it will be worth the sacrifice if I can keep my old friend, running, in my life for a little longer. I know I can give it up when I must, but I hope I can put it off for a while. I think that with streak runners fortitude and foolishness are entwined like magnetism and electricity are in a beam of light and they alternately keep pushing the other one forward. Foolishness finally redeemed.

Good wishes for a healthy year for all USRSA members. Remember to alternate your feet when you run. It helps.

DAVID KWONG'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 1,323 DAYS

I'm writing to let you know that my streak officially ended on 8/11/18. My streak started on 12/28/14. I just traveled to India for business and there was some time zone weirdness that led to some confusion.

Oh well, it was for the best anyway as after achieving my highest yearly total miles last year, I injured my knee one night by hyper-extending it which led to a real long recovery but while that was recovering, I developed plantar fasciitis in the base of the heel on both feet. The level of pain each morning was directly related to the number of miles run the previous day, and as I reduced my daily mileage down to 1-2, I started noticing the pain was twice as bad on days I ran 2 miles as when I ran just 1. So, struggling to run pain free for just one mile a day has not been fun the past 8 months.

I want to go back to running 15 milers but the heel pain just won't let me. I will be taking a 1-2 weeks off from running and then slowly ease my way back in. I need to start loving to run again and not doing it only to maintain a streak and enduring pain every day. Good luck to you all and I will be back sooner than you think.

JAMES FREISS' STREAK HITS 600 DAYS

This craziness all started in December 2016. 600 days hitting the trails or pavement in a row as of today. 3,988 miles (6.65 per day) and counting! Been an interesting experience. The 600 days has also encompassed the completion of Vermont and Zion 100s plus 50-mile tuneups with a few North Face and the New Jersey Trail series races.

If you can fill the unforgiving minute
With sixty seconds' worth of distance run,
Yours is the Earth and everything that's in it,
And---which is more---you'll be a Man, my son!

THE FINISH LINE By: Mark Washburne

As noted by our lead story, we were all saddened to hear that another long running streak ended this quarter. Started on 25 September 1972, Steven Gathje, 63, an actuary from South Minneapolis, Minnesota, finally ended his running streak after 16,742 consecutive days (45.84 years) on 27 July 2018. Despite knowing that all streaks must end someday, I am always surprised when long streaks end after decades and that was the case when I heard the news from Mr. Gathje.

The first long streak I remember ending occurred in 2005 when Robert Ray, of Baltimore, Maryland, voluntarily ended his streak after completing 37 years and 100,000 miles. "I ended my running streak with a four-miler over to Perry Hall High School, around the school track, and back to my home," wrote Mr. Ray in his "Farewell to My Running Streak" that was published in the Summer 2005 issue of The Streak Registry. "I ran the final four miles with Lee Bergquist from Wisconsin. Back at home, I removed my shoes, tied them together and hung them on our lamppost. With a final notation in my logbook, I closed the chapter on my streaking career and put the logbook away."

When Bob Ray's running streak ended in 2005, he went from having the longest active running streak on our list (until 2012, we only kept track of running streaks in the United States) to having the longest retired streak on the USRSA list. Today, in 2018, Bob Ray's running streak is listed as the 10th longest retired running streak in the United States. If we also include currently active streaks, Bob Ray's streak of 13,884 days would rank 39th on our all-time list of both active and retired streaks in the United States.

Steve Gathje's streak now occupies the position Bob Ray's streak held on our list in 2005 as it is the longest retired running streak in the United States and second longest retired running streak in the world after the streak of Ron Hill of England (52+ years; 19,032 days). Mr. Gathje had the fifth longest active running streak in the world as listed by our running streak association when his streak ended. We here at SRI/USRSA wish Steve Gathje a quick recovery and much luck in the future.

As for me, I am keeping busy with my own streaks. This summer my running streak that started on the last day of 1989 surpassed 28 ½ years. This week I received notification that I was accepted into the 2019 Boston Marathon. If I should be so lucky to complete Boston next April, I will have a streak of 15 consecutive finishes for the celebrated marathon.

I am also keeping busy running for public office. As many of you know, I ran in the New Jersey Primary in June for the United States Congress. In that contest, I came in third out of five Primary candidates to represent my party in the General Election in November. Given my showing in the Congressional race, it looked like my short-lived attempt at political office was over but a surprise development has kept it going. About three weeks before the June Primary, I was contacted by the head of my political party in my town of Mendham Borough and advised that no one from our party had filed for Mayor. My town's party leader then asked if I would accept a write-in vote for that position should I not be successful in the Congressional race. I agreed and received 74 write-in votes in the June Primary. I am now on the ballot for Mayor of Mendham Borough, New Jersey in the General Election to be held in November. Surprising political luck for me and, of course, good luck to you as we each run the roads and trails – every day!
