BOSTON MARATHON RACE DIRECTOR DAVE MCGILLIVRAY
COMPLETES 50TH CONSECUTIVE BOSTON MARATHON
AND 500 DAYS OF RUNNING EVERY DAY
By: Dave McGillivray

It took 1,310 miles to get here, but because of the support and encouragement of family, friends and colleagues I was able to finish my 50th Boston Marathon on Monday evening, 18 April 2022. I was thrilled to be joined by so many dear friends and running icons along with two very special runners, my son Luke, and daughter, Elle. Other friends and supporters joined us along the way and as we approached the finish line. We did exactly what we said we were going to do, start at 3pm and finish at 8pm. Our crew of Captain Ron Kramer and my brother Bob (Bmac) along with other amazing supporters managed the entire run with incredible precision and efficiency. State Police troopers once again escorted us along the entire course keeping us going and keeping us safe. The run was flawless and the smoothest ever.

Dave McGillivray

I was taken back when my friend Sean Ryan presented me with a poster of my grandfather as we were passing by the Evergreen Cemetery where he is buried. It was 51 years ago that I dropped out of the race near this spot and when I vowed to come back and do it again and again and again and for the rest of my life. My grandfather taught me about “earning the right” to set goals and because of that I never dropped out of another race in my life.

We all arrived at the finish line to the cheers of literally hundreds of friends including Boston Marathon winners Meb Keflezighi, Kathrine Switzer, Joan Samuelson, Amby Burfoot and Bobbi Gibb. My other children, Ryan, Max and Chloe, held the finish line break tape. I presented my bib #100 to Joyce Wade, wife of Paul Wade from Cincinnati who qualified for Boston but tragically passed away in August.

Each runner and supporter received a special 50th medal generously donated by Ashworth Awards. And, most importantly, over $100,000 was raised for the Dave McGillivray Finish Strong Foundation which inspires and empowers youth across New England and beyond to increase physical activity, expand literacy, and build community and self-esteem through running, reading, and performing acts of kindness. The Foundation recently donated six running “blades” to kids with prosthetics so that they are also able to run. One of them joined us for the final stretch along Boylston Street. Pretty inspiring. And there is still time to donate at:
<https://www.givengain.com/cause/62379/campaigns/23790/>

Many thanks to the BAA, my DMSE Sports colleagues, my crew, Ashworth Awards, my “teammates,” my family, the media, the State Police, Eric Gilsean for all he has done and all those who came out to welcome us at the finish line. My only sadness is that my Mom, Dad, brother Alan and Grandpa Eaton weren’t here to see it all...but then again, maybe they were. On to #51!!

Dave McGillivray

I admit, "I'M A STREAK FREAK!!" Besides being a Boston Marathon stalker, I also became an everyday streak runner. Started on 14 March 2021, my streak recently surpassed 500 days at the end of July.

What can I say, I like streaks. Truth be told, I actually don't consider them as much "streaks" as I do "commitments." When I make a commitment whether it is foolish and silly or a serious one, I am obsessed with sticking to it.

My inspiration for running Boston in the first place was Ron Hill from Great Britain. Ron, who had a daily streak of 52+ years, won the 1970 Boston Marathon. He set a then course record of 2:10 in the pouring rain. I was listening to that race on the radio while helping my Dad work on his car in the garage. I recall turning to my Dad and saying, "someday I'm going to run in that race, Dad." Three years later I finished my first Boston.

Meanwhile, In March 2021, I made a commitment to run every day for one year. DONE. Check that one off the list. Again, not a big deal to most, but it sort of was a big deal for me as I have never done this before in 50 years of running. It's the "little" things in life that sometimes end up being the big things. Now the big question is, will I take tomorrow off or keep going? I did not commit to more than 365 days but now find I have passed 500 days. What do you think?

When I was growing up, I "committed" to not missing a day of school...ever. Well, other than being taken to the hospital in the 8th grade for appendix surgery, I never missed a day of school...and that includes 4 years of college.

A silly one – in order to use the bathroom when you were in class, you had to raise your hand and request a "bathroom" pass. I "committed" to never asking for a bathroom pass and I never did. Needless to say, some classes were very painful experiences.

Another really, really silly one – my parents bought these new, blue swivel chairs for the tv / living room. When they arrived, I told my two brothers that I would never, ever sit in those chairs. Why? I don't know, just another silly "commitment." Well, I never, ever sat in those chairs. My brothers would actually try to push me into those chairs but it never happened!!

Then there are my two favorites...running the Boston Marathon...which hit #50 on April 18th and "running" my age on my birthday for the past 55-years (full disclosure, after my triple bypass surgery I ran and biked my miles). My game, my rules!

Regarding my birthday run, when I was approaching 50, I begin asking myself how long can I continue to do this? What am I going to do when I turn 90??? So, I thought, maybe I do 50 and then start going in reverse, that is, when I turn 51, I will run 49 miles, etc. Thus, when I turn 90, I only have to do 10 miles. Seems like a reasonable plan. As I was running on my 51st birthday, I got to 49 miles and stopped...briefly. Do I now end this "streak" of adding a mile or do I keep going? I anguished over this for about 15-minutes and then just said, "hey, I feel good, I can easily do 2 more miles" and just kept going. I turned 68 in August and now wish I stopped at 49 miles as I'd only have to do 32 miles instead of 68!

Then there was my cross-country run. I vowed never to take a day off...so I didn't for 80 consecutive days. And, when the pandemic hit in 2020 and the Boston Marathon was cancelled, I still ran a "virtual" marathon on Patriots Day because that is what I had always committed to doing and ran the official virtual marathon in September....however, knowing I had not run the actual Boston Marathon course in 2020, I snuck out and ran the entire course a week after I ran the virtual marathon, just to keep that “streak” going. Did the same in 2021.

I’ve always believed in “setting goals, not limits” and these goals / commitments / streaks just keep me honest and keep me motivated and always moving forward. When asked what my best accomplishment is, I say “my next one.”

Here are some of my other highlights over the years:

ATHLETIC ACCOMPLISHMENTS

Dave McGillivray first gained national prominence in 1978 for his RUN ACROSS AMERICA to raise money for the Jimmy Fund. He ran 3,452 miles from Medford, OR, to Medford, MA in 80 consecutive days, averaging 45 miles per day, to raise money for the Jimmy Fund, a charity which supports research toward eliminating cancer in children. This run ended in Fenway Park to a standing ovation by 32,000 fans. Since then, McGillivray has accomplished numerous other inspirational and charitable feats, as well as earned a reputation as one of the world’s premier race directors.

In 1980, he entered the Hawaii IRONMAN TRIATHLON WORLD CHAMPIONSHIP and finished 14th. He was the 30th person to have ever completed an Ironman. He completed the event again in 1983-1989, 2014, for a total of 9 times.

Also in 1980, McGillivray’s EAST COAST RUN charted 1,250 miles from Winter Haven, Florida, to Boston; he was joined by Bob Hall, a pioneer in wheelchair marathoning, to raise money for the Jimmy Fund. They met with President Carter at the White House during the trek through Washington, D.C.

In 1980, he ran 120-miles in 2-hours through 31 communities in southeastern MA for the “Run For Our Dreams Marathon.” The run ended in Foxboro Stadium (now Gillette Stadium) at halftime of a New England Patriots game. The ultra-marathon benefited the Wrentham State School; it raised more than $10,000 for the handicapped.

In 1981, he completed an ultra-triathlon (ran, cycled, and swam) of 1,522-miles throughout the six New England states, raising $55,000 for the Jimmy Fund. Unusual segments of the event included running up and down Mt. Washington, swimming two miles across Lake Winnepesaukee, swimming one mile from Woods Hole, MA, toward Martha’s Vineyard, running three miles with inmates inside Walpole State Prison, and finishing in Foxboro Stadium in front of 60,000 people.

Officially completed his New England run by swimming more than 7 miles from Martha’s Vineyard to Falmouth, MA, again raising more money for the Jimmy Fund. McGillivray was greeted by thousands on shore including some of the world’s greatest runners, including Alberto Salazar.

McGillivray ran the 1982 Boston Marathon in a time of 3:14 while blindfolded and being escorted by two guides. He raised more than $10,000 for the Carroll Center for the Blind in Newton, MA.

In 1983, he swam for 24 consecutive hours in the Olympic-size Medford High School pool, swimming a total of 1,884 lengths and covering 26.27 miles (distance of the Boston Marathon) to raise money for the Jimmy Fund. That same year, he raised money for a scholarship fund for his alma mater, Merrimack College, by bicycling more than 1,000-miles throughout six New England states in 14 days.

Dave McGillivray

Again, raising money for the Jimmy Fund, McGillivray cycled for 24 consecutive hours around a five-mile loop course in Medford, MA, while simultaneously directing the annual Bay State Triathlon, being held on the same course at the same time. He covered a total of 385 miles.

In 2004, McGillivray ran across the country again, this time with nine other veteran marathoners, in relay style, from San Francisco to Boston as part of TREK USA, an event he founded and raised more than $300,000 for five children's charities.

In 2018, he completed the World Marathon Challenge, running 7 marathons in 7 days on 7 continents.

He has run 163 marathons, including 50 consecutive Boston Marathons (with 35 run at night after his race director duties are fulfilled).

Marathon personal best: 2:29:58.

Ironman personal best: 10:36:42.

McGillivray has run his birthday age each year since he was 12-years old. In recent years he has completed the miles by running and cycling.

Females Traversing the Tundra Daily in Ever-Increasing Numbers

By: Steve DeBoer

The advent of women streakers in the US and the world (I mean the clothed kind) occurred a decade after men started to embrace the concept of daily running – Bob Ray in 1967, Mark Covert in 1968 being the earliest who registered their streaks (with the exception of Ted Corbitt, whose first documented streak began in 1953 and was registered after his death). Eileen Rountree of WY was the first female, beginning October 1, 1977, and Julie Maxwell of MN was second (July 5, 1978).

As Eileen wrote in the Winter 2012 Streak Registry, she started to run to improve her endurance for tennis and did it every day for 23 years except when she gave birth to her two children, as labor lasted 27 hours each time. She never ran a race and always ran alone in the early morning before getting her kids up. It is interesting that, as opposed to early male streakers, who were competitive athletes, she started the trend for women not knowing it was a “thing” or even associating with other runners, female or otherwise. Due to flat feet and knee problems, she had to switch to walking, which she still did daily when she registered her 3 running streaks that winter.

Eileen and Julie were the only 2 women who had run daily for at least 365 days as of January 1980, since #3, Margaret Blackstock of GA, started in September of 1979. However, Margaret was the first to register her streak, having also been the only woman listed on George Hancock’s initial US Running Streak list in 1994 (1 of 51 persons or 2%). These streaks have now all ended, as has that of Alicia Brophy of MA, who began her 30 years streak in November of 1980. Her streak lasted 102 days less than Margaret’s. They are listed as #52 and #54 longest on the US retired list. Julie broke her ankle in December 2011, at 33 years and 159 days, now the longest female retired streak, 41st longest in the US overall. She then returned to streak running in March 2012 and has now run daily for over ten years.

There are a few other women who have running streaks over 30 years. We thought Barb Latta of NC had the longest streak, begun in December 1983, after Julie broke her ankle, but eight years ago, Lois Bastien, from FL, contacted the organization, to tell us that she has been doing daily runs since April 1980. She has now surpassed 42 years and, at age 85, is the first female streaking after age 80 (#25 on the US active list). Barb is the only other woman over 80 running daily, now for 38 ½ years. Sue Favor of CA is one year behind Barb (Dec 1984), and then comes Judy Mick of VA, who started Nov 1985.

Julie Maxwell has the most years of daily runs among all women in the world (43 years, 9 months), with second place belonging to Lois Bastien at 42 years, 3 months).

Since I am on the topic of long female running streaks, here are the top fifteen longest continuous ever:

1. Lois Bastien	42 yrs 3 mo (FL)	still active #1
2. Barb Latta	38 yrs 6 mo (NC)	still active #2
3. Sue Favor	37 yrs 6 mo (CA)	still active #3

On the Streak Runners International (SRI) web site, there are 20 women on the Active List who have done daily runs for over 15 years. The longest active streak outside of the US is Elke Weisener of Denmark, who will reach 14 years September 24, 2022. At age 68, she is the 3rd oldest female run streaker not residing in the US. Collette O'Hagan of IR is 73 and Nikki Holden of GB is 70.

Only two women who have registered their daily running are deceased. The first was Victoria Leafgren of MN in October 2021, with a streak string over 30 years that ended the day she passed away. She is #53 on the retired list, between Margaret and Alicia. Diana Nelson of IL, who passed away in February 2022, had two streaks (39 years total), her first lasting from Jan 1982 until Oct 2007.

In 2010, Lois, Barb, Margaret, Diana and Ruth Gorman were the only women running daily over the age of 60. In 2019, there were 32 females over 60 and ten more age 59. There were 72 females outside of the US registered by 2019 on SRI, but only 1 (Christel Prause of Germany) was over age 60 and none were under age 20. As of 7/3/22, there are 1038 active in the US (75 over age 60) and 621 in other countries (20 over age 60). but only 1 age 15 or under, who resides in Canada plus two more who started before their 15th birthday.

On the younger side in the US, there are currently 8 active who have not reached their 16th birthday. The youngest before 2015 was Keziah Wilde of MA, whose 7 year streak began May 2012, at the age of 9 years, 11 months. Since then we have added 20 more, including 4 that began before age 8 (Jenna Thorson – 7 yrs 10 mo; Molly Hampton – 7 yrs 9 mo; Lauren Thorson – 5 yrs 9 mo; Sierra Stempke – 3 yrs 11 mo). Sierra was the youngest to ever begin daily runs, which she does with her dad and brothers. MN has had the most females that started before 15 with 9. Outside of the US, there is only 1 female age 15 or under on the active list (Rose Morisset), who resides in Quebec, Canada, plus two more who started before their 15th birthday.

In the US, up to January 1990, 13 of 264 streak runners all time (4.9%) were women; by January 2000 there were 16 women of 374 (4.3%); by January 2010 there had been 88 women of 586 (14.9%). As of July 2016, that percentage had risen to 28% (280 of 1000). States where at least 45% of their daily runners are female in July 2022 include OR (46%), NY (48%), AK (50%), DC & WY (53%), UT & VT (54%), ME (57%), and MT (10 of 16 or 63%)! Counting all US females who have had a streak, there had been 777 of them as of July 10, 2019 (including retired and some not registered). That number had increased to 1496 as of July 10, 2022.

Worldwide, on the current active and registered list, there were 1665 of 4008 (41.5%) that are women. If we only look at those who made it to 365 days in the last 3 years, 899 of 1910 are females, or 47.1%! The country with the most streakers outside of the US is Sweden. As of July 10, 2022, they had 654 people on the active list, with 379 (58%) being women.

Barb Latta was our first female streak runner at age 40, 50, 60 & 70, since Lois Bastien had not registered yet. Barb is also the only woman listed who has run in all 50 states (and 25 countries). Barb Elia, who had an unregistered streak, has now run over 500 marathons & ultras. As for total lifetime mileage, as of 12-31-2021, several were at or over 90,000:

- Carolyn Mather (231,980 – not registered)
- Barb Elia (154,300)
- Barb Latta (146,670)
- Sherry Case (134,000)
- Lauren Siegel (110,940)
- Tammy Slusser (110,500)
- Diana Nelson (100,000)
- Victoria Leafgren (96,650)
- Deb Dilling (95,160).

The most miles run in one year are 7921 by Carolyn Mather, 3841 by Sherry Case, 3810 by Debbie Ciccati, and 3807 by Nancy Harmon.

Since so few women were run streaking before 2000, I do not list top states until 2010. WY, SD, and MT all had one female registered by then, which put them on top on a population basis:

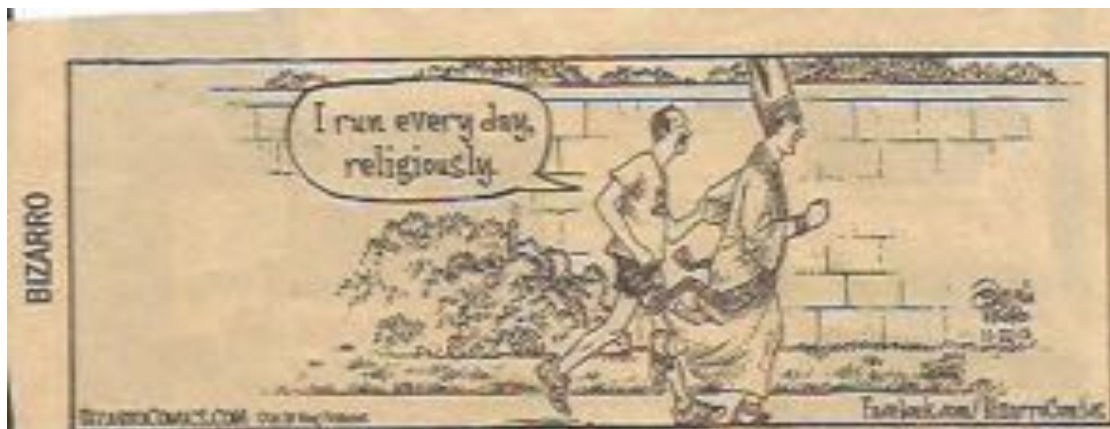

TOP 7 Number-Wise		Top 7 Percentage-Wise (Per million residents)
CA	12	WY	1.76
PA	6	SD	1.22
IL	6	MT	1.01
MA	5	MA	0.76
WA	5	NH	0.76
NJ	4	MN	0.75
MN	4	WA	0.74

As of July 10, 2022, here are some Stats by State regarding the number of women who have run daily, followed by numbers 6 years ago. Also noted are the top 10 per million residents (for example, MN now has 19.63 female run streakers all time (active and retired per million people). Some are counted more than once if they have lived in more than one state at least 6 months or currently split their residence between 2 different locations.

KRISTEN LEWIS' STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

Running is not what I do. But it is what makes everything else I do ok. I am in absolute disbelief that I've run every day for the past 2 years. 720 Days - every single morning... through tough days.. easy days.. injuries, tiredness, the demands of working and being a mom, rain, snow, sun & wind.

My streak has reached over 6388Km's, countless 5 & 10km's and over 25 Half-marathons.

It's truly become a habit. It's not a, "will I run today-it's I will run today" and my family knows that. They may think I'm crazy ... but... it's ME.

I know my streak is just an infant compared to so many other streakers out there. Those streakers are the ones that motivate and inspire me to keep going. The human body is truly amazing and I am so grateful mine allows me to do what I love.

Running has taught me I am so much stronger than I think.

Thank you to my running partners @nadine and Murphy & @ Paula .. my runs are always better with you beside me. Cheers to another year. Happy running!

ANNA KENDRICK'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 1,616 DAYS

My streak ended on April 25. It lasted 1,616 days. Unfortunately, I had to have surgery on April 26 that requires no physical activity for 6 weeks. Hope to be back to running soon, but for now, my streak is over.

BRIAN FLASPOHLER'S STREAK HITS 9 YEARS

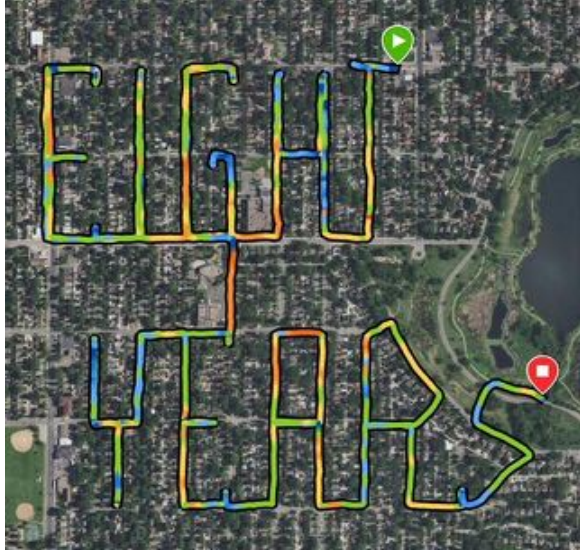

On May 25, 2022, I hit day number 3288, or nine years and one day. I have a new book coming out June 6, "St. Louis Baseball History - A Guide," which contains the following tidbit in the 'About The Author' section, "As of this writing, he has run every single day for over nine years." On May 25, that line became true. There has been some pressure the last several months to keep the streak going because I wrote that and didn't want it to forever be wrong! Anyway, still going.

JENNIFER FITZHARRIS-FUNK'S STREAK HITS 8 YEARS

Thanks for the congratulations and recognition of 8 years! I just finished my run marking the occasion (it's the same route I've done every year with modifications to the year). My husband, Brian, who is also a streak runner (5/9/2015) got me started with a 99-day running streak from Memorial Day to Labor Day - at day 99 I kept going and he was ready to be done - only to start streaking again a year later. He joined me on today's run and is kicking himself that I've got almost a year on him!

Still at it. Day 730 in the books today. I started my streak May 26, 2020 and somehow have kept it going through ice, 2AM runs in a hotel parking lot and more recently, with the help of a treadmill.

PATRICK MITCHELL'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

I passed the 3-year mark earlier this week (May 24). As many of others have said, I thought it would be a great accomplishment just to make it from Memorial Day to Independence Day back in 2019.

And with the pandemic, having that daily requirement to go run made it...well bearable! Thankfully real races started back up here in Delaware in May of 2021 and it is good to be out there with fellow human beings!

When asked how long I plan to streak, I really don't have an answer. It's really easy to get out there and run a mile, so it's an open question.

So here's to more run streak milestones in 2022 and beyond!

DAN GALLIAN'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

On May 20, I completed 3 years of my current run streak. I never thought when I started, it would last this long, especially after my heart attack in 2017. I had planned to run from Memorial Day to July 4, but then it stretched to half-year, then full year, then two and three.

In 2016, I ran my 16th and fastest marathon, and qualified for Boston the first time ever. But a few months later, on trail run along a part of the Western States 100 trail, I broke my ankle. By the time it was 90% healed (about 8 months before the Boston Marathon), I ran a 10-mile race, and suffered a heart attack!

Two stents later, the cardiologist said I could still run Boston. It was tough (2018, was the year of the 25mph headwind and 2" rain), but I completed the marathon. To keep my heart rate below 135, I had to run one minute, walk one minute, the entire marathon...but it was worth it!

I've run two more marathons (more running than walking now), and I'm planning my twentieth marathon this fall, after I turn 70. Got to keep running!

SARAH BOHRER'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

Three years today [27 May 2022]! This is my second streak, first one had to end at 1.5 years due to medical emergency.

Streaking has been such an empowering and lifesaving endeavor since I started. It has made me stronger physically, mentally and emotionally.

This one has been different in that my mileage isn't as high, but I still love getting up every morning and knocking out at least a few miles. It was a struggle to get my runs in during the early pandemic, but proved to be so important for my mental health.

Today I am 7 months pregnant, and keeping up my streak while pregnant has presented its own unique challenges. So far, I have been able to maintain, even if it is just truly 1 mile a day. I have such respect and admiration for my body to be able to continue to run while also making a little human!

I'm hopeful I'll be able to maintain my streak even during delivery and post-partum, but we shall see! If the streak has to end in August, then so be it. Here's to hoping my body can continue to be magical and I'll be able to make my streak continue to 4 years!

URSULA PARKER'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

Tonight [30 May 2022], my husband and I completed our last run in the 3rd year of our run streak, bringing us to embark on the first day of our 4th year tomorrow (also our 24th wedding anniversary).

Not every day of a run streak is awesome, sometimes long stretches seem to have little return, but like a marriage, sticking with it usually finds you in a better place for having just stuck through it.

Here's to taking each day, each mile, as a step in the right direction! It's such a part of our lives, I can't imagine a life without it. On to year four!!

It's still alive and well. It's funny the places we'll run to keep the streak going. I've run many miles at rest areas to keep the streak going. It's been rewarding, beneficial, at times aggravating, but mostly fun. I plan on continuing!

LAURIE ROBERTS' STREAK HITS 9 YEARS

My run streak started on June 1, 2013. I was looking for a new running goal, as I approached my 50th birthday. A friend at work had started a run streak on January 1st, and I was intrigued by the idea.

At this point in my running life, I had run two marathons and four half marathons, as well as some shorter races, but I had discovered that I don't really love racing. What I love is running. Still, the idea of running daily was daunting and ran counter to what I thought I knew about healthy running habits. Nonetheless, on June 1 I started my streak, with the goal of running for nine months -- until the day I turned 50.

By the time I was three months into the streak, I knew I was in love. Run streaking suits me in so many ways, and now that I am nine years in, I know I won't stop until I have to.

JEREMY LANE'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

On June 3, 2022, I will celebrate my third-year anniversary of streak running. There have been many achievements along this journey. I ran several marathons, did a 50 km run and entered several races too.

I managed to run a half marathon or more every day for 100 days straight. (Sept 21-Dec 29, 2020). Of course, my dream is to run the Boston Marathon.

Despite injuries along the way, I've never considered abandoning this streak.

MATTY REED'S STREAK HITS 6 YEARS

Hello there! I would just like to share my runstreak anniversary news with you. Today [2 June 2022] marks 6 calendar years of running every day for me,

I only ever wanted to run for 10 days. After speaking to someone back in the early days about compression socks, I got to the 10th day and thought well this feels ok and from there we are now on day 2,190 days.

It's been quite a journey so far but one I do not want to give up. I just say thank you to all of you for the support and encouragement you give in times of need on the various Facebook streak pages and of course on good old Strava. Thanks all.

MERCEDES MUROLO'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 1677 DAYS

All good things must end. My running streak ended in serious pain on 3/21/22.

Seems I needed a new right hip. Got it ~ love it. It was a few days of pain traded for a pain free right leg & I highly recommend the procedure! Nonetheless, my surgeon is extremely cautious and does not want me to start running again till after my next appointment on June 9th.

I do intend to run marathons again, but who knows ~ guess it will be like starting from the beginning, except I will know how really simple it is to chalk up serious millage.

CHRIS MAY'S STREAK HITS A DECADE

My streak is still alive with a personal minimum of two miles a day. In the past, I was more of a long-distance runner, running a few ultra-marathons, but I have a bad foot that no longer likes distances above 20-30 miles.

Running is very cathartic for me, providing dedicated time to clear my head. I have been fortunate regarding injuries and overall health although I have certainly run sick, a couple of times with COVID.

I appreciate my family's support and this community. I am inspired by the stories I read and what others share. Thank you!

GARY KLAWANS RUNS 50TH MARATHON

My streak is still intact. Picture of me running the Knoxville Marathon is [above]. Some info about me:

I have been running on a regular basis since 1999 when I started training for the Chicago Marathon. I have since run 49 more marathons hitting 50 in April this year in Louisville. I have 8 states to go in order to hit my 50 State goal.

I started my streak in September 2020 after I retired from the daily work grind. I received some great retirement advice from my Father who told me that I should find something to look forward to every day. I had been running 2-3 times per week but decided to try and run every day. It would be my one every day thing to look forward to.

Initially, I was going for a 1-year streak but after completing that goal I decided to just run every day for as long as I can. We shall see how things go. At 62 years old, every day I can run is a great day!

NOAH RASHKIND'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

On June 6, 2019, I decided that my running had become way too inconsistent. After completing my first Dopey Challenge (48.6 miles over 4 days) in January of that year, and my first 100K a month later (with a slipped disc... freak potty training incident involving a sock and a bathtub, long story, not important right now), and pushing my body to failure at the Georgia Death Race a month after that, I found it increasingly difficult to stay motivated, and it was very easy to make excuses why I shouldn't run. I'm too tired. I'll just run tomorrow. It's too hot. It's too cold. It's too buggy. It's too humid. The horseflies are biting. The deer flies are burrowing into my scalp. My foot hurts. My knee hurts. My head hurts. I don't wanna. Just one more rest day. Blah blah blah.

Those are all quasi-valid excuses why not to run on any given day, and perhaps take a rest day or two, but those excuses began to outnumber the days during the week when I was actually running. It's very easy to fall off the proverbial running horse. And once you fall off, it's difficult to get back on. I think I had fallen out of the saddle and my feet were stuck in the stirrups and I was being dragged along the ground.

Anyway, I'm not the first person to go on a running streak. It's a thing. Some people continue their streaks for years, sometimes decades. I was initially inspired by the story of a local runner who continued her running streak all through chemotherapy - which is truly incredible. Figured I would give it a try for a month and see how it went.

The hope was that it would get me back into a more consistent routine. The only rule I made for myself, and I had to follow it to keep the streak alive, was that I had to run at least 1 mile per day. It's the perfect distance for this sort of thing. It's just far enough that it WILL raise my HR and I WILL be sweating at the end, even if just a little bit. But it's also something that I can do in under 15 minutes. Who doesn't have 15 minutes to spare each day to just zone-out and go?

The first 30 days were the most difficult physically for me. I could tell that stuff in my body had to get used to the daily stresses of what I was doing. Never before had I gone more than a couple weeks straight without ending up with some sort of overuse injury.

The deal I made with my massage therapist was that I'd take at least two days a week and make those "ultra pace" days. Those are my prescribed "rest days." For me, that's somewhere between 10-15 min/mile. This would reduce overall stress and hopefully I'd avoid overuse injuries. It worked.

Stuff in my body felt a little loose and wonky at times during that first month, but nothing bad happened. My body got used to the additional stress, and I felt good about continuing with it. Since then, my streak has become this daily thing that I just do without much thought, like showering, brushing my teeth, eating breakfast, and heckling people on FB.

I run, every single day, at least one mile per day. No excuses. Some days I put it off until just before midnight, but it's never crossed my mind to intentionally skip a day.

There are only a few days out of the year that really stick out in my mind. The first was having to jog up and down Terminal D at Miami International Airport before boarding my plane. Flights out of Miami normally get me home after 11pm. I didn't want to risk running out of time to get it done if there was some sort of delay.

I had to do that a couple times, and I know I looked like a crazy idiot when I did it. I suppose it's not weird to run through an airport, but when you're literally running back and forth for no apparent reason, while wearing a suit and tie, people notice. They stare. They judge. They giggle. I don't blame them.

The one other day that stands out was the day after completing the Wild Florida 120 Mile Endurance Run. It was a very slow and mildly painful run. I was really beat up that day. It was "100+ miler ultra-pace," but I got it done. And I think it actually helped my recovery a bit.

After that, running became hard again. The streak was OK, and I was gearing up for the Georgia Death Race again before the apocalypse postponed it, but I needed to add more "rest days" after that. I needed way more rest. I was losing my motivation again, and even the shortest runs made me tired, out of breath, and some runs made my HR rise a little too much even when I was barely moving. I wasn't injured, but the accumulated stress on my body was starting to show in my vitals.

So I listened to my body and took a couple months "off." That meant way more consecutive days of slow 1 mile runs, and far more early-to-bed nights, so that I'd be sure I was getting enough sleep. Sleep is critical. This rest period also happened to coincide with the quarantine, and I'm glad I kept it going.

The streak kept me centered. It ensured that I was leaving my house and getting fresh air every single day. That proved to be critical for my health and wellbeing. Cabin fever is real. I also want to impart on my children the importance of getting outside and exercising regularly. They join me for runs and walks and bike rides, which are all great alternatives to being inside with a screen.

I'm just now starting to rebuild my base, and things seem to be going swimmingly so far. I feel great. My cardio engine is not what it was a few months ago, but it's coming back quickly and I'm optimistic about the future. I'm sure I won't keep up the streak forever, but I'd like to keep it up for the foreseeable future.

TROY CUCCHIARA'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

When I first started my streak three years ago, I was only hoping to make it through a few months. Once I learned there were tons of amazing people who had been running non-stop for years and even decades, my temporary streak became a lifestyle, a habit, and a daily morning activity that occurs without question every single day.

All of my runs are in the early morning, most of which happen prior to the sun rising, my favorite part of the day. This primes my body and mind for whatever challenges the day will bring.

After the first week, one mile did not feel like it was enough so I slowly increased it to a mile and a half that quickly became the Goldilocks zone. I had no idea that this year would bring the two biggest challenges yet.

A freak hiking incident caused a traumatic shoulder dislocation. There was no chance I was going to mention my running streak to the attending physician and hear it be said to not continue the streak. Some things are just best left unsaid.

So, I had to figure out how to continue with no further damage to an extremely painful injury. Pain is a good thing and I knew that already. I let it guide me to position my arm in this tight and close to the body position that seemed to have the least amount of movement when my feet hit the ground. This included keeping the scapula muscles engaged for the entire run which I later learned were stabilizers for the shoulders.

This meant that my physical therapy essentially started on day one, all because of the streak which aided in the rehab and recovery. I eventually ended up keeping both arms in the same position for balance which probably looked hysterical or frightening at best to anyone up early enough to observe.

The second challenge was that of COVID. Running with a 101 fever is something that my body screamed not to do but my mind screamed louder. I had to reduce my pace to that of a post marathon pace, barely a run but definitely still running.

I could have stopped and walked. I wanted to stop and just lay down to take a nap right there on the dirt road. It would have felt so good, but I knew that completing the run would feel even better when done. So, I compromised with my body and decided for the first time in 33 months, to reduce my minimum to a mile. Every step felt like the last mile of a marathon when all I could think about was stopping. Once I passed the peak of illness, I knew it was all downhill, figuratively and started to build back up to 1.5 miles again.

Now for the next set of challenges of whatever life will throw at me. The streak lives!

Bryan McCullar

BRYAN MCCULLAR'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

It's been 2 full years of running everyday (and for me the additional requirement was running outside) that began in early June of 2020.

Covid had shut down organized sports and I turned more to running due to accessibility. A weekly commute time to the office of 6 hours was returned to me and I converted that time into training.

I had recently bumped into a small group of trail runners and fell deep into that rabbit hole and found myself in the ultra-trail game by the end of June 2020.

By October 2020, I completed my first trail 50-miler in North Carolina and another in December in Arizona.

By February of 2021, I had found the finish line at the Rocky Raccoon 100-miler and again in October 2021 at the Arkansas Traveler 100-miler.

In May of 2022, I had finished AURA's (Arkansas Ultra Running Association) 15-race Ultra Trail Series winning the Master's Division to receive the King of the Trail award.

Meanwhile, I managed to get outside for at least a mile, though I've averaged 7 miles per day over these 2 years.

When I'm not running, I've been employed at a food company for 20+ years and currently head coach of my 7-yr old son Maverick in baseball (who often hits the trails with me himself).

I love runners, their passion, their work ethic, and their natural disposition for positive support and encouragement to all. So proud to be part of the wonderful running community we have in Arkansas, and getting to meet and share experiences with so many other runners across our beautiful country. Streak on!

Brittney Ciszek

BRITTNEY CISZEK'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 1,096 DAYS

Since Day 1 of my run streak in 2019, I have had the intention of writing out my thoughts and sharing my running adventures with the SRI/USRSA community. Somehow, life always manages to get in the way and I never did turn those thoughts into words, until now.

Day 1095. I know I am not alone in feeling as though time is limited. It often feels like every minute of every day is devoted to some task or commitment. The To Do list in my head is ever-growing, and writing out a quick blurb for the SRI USRSA community was easily pushed to the bottom of that list time after time. This is, in part, what makes a run streak so special. For the past 3 years, I have made running a priority every single day. It was a choice to wake up every day and do something that was for me and only me, to benefit my physical and mental health. And I am better for it.

I began my streak with the annual Runner's World Summer Run Streak on Memorial Day in 2019 and planned to end it on the 4th of July. I read the 2019 Run Streak edition of the Runner's World magazine and was inspired by the incredible stories of the streakers.

I still think about the man who has run 8 miles on the beach every day for the past 40 years, through rain and shine and hurricane winds. I love the story of the father whose daily mile inspired his young children so much that they could not help but to join, making them some of the youngest streakers around. When the 4th of July rolled around, I did not want to stop. There were a couple of lessons that stuck out to me in those initial months and beyond.

I learned that despite the ever-growing To Do list and the craziness of life, you can always find time. A break in the day that moves your body and gets you breathing is a mile (or more!) well spent.

I also learned that a goal such as this one will force you out of your comfort zone, pushing you to run in places you would not normally run. You see the scenery a little differently, experiencing the beauty of the world with a fresh perspective and a rush of endorphins.

One afternoon, while taking in the beauty of the Bonneville Salt Flats, I realized I had not yet run my mile and so I ran a spontaneous barefoot mile out into the middle of the flats. In just a few minutes, I had escaped the populated highway exit, finding myself in my own peaceful little section of bright white salt and sunshine. And the feeling of the salt on my feet was incredible.

Another thing that became evident was that when you set a goal such as this one, others are inspired to join. As mentioned, my daily run was always something that was for me and only me. I liked running on my own time at my chosen location at whichever pace was best suited to me on each specific day.

But it was always such a treat to have the occasional friend or family member who wanted to join. It felt like a gift I could share with others. I enjoyed good conversations and great scenery with the best people.

In spring 2020 I quarantined with family and it was not long before my nephew, close to 3 years old at the time, wanted to join in on the fun. He would strap on his "running shoes" and "running hat" and we would head out for some of the slowest, but most special, miles that I can remember, with "I Like to Move it, Move it" and the Batman Theme Song on repeat.

Other memorable runs included ones in National and State Parks, and in different states, provinces, and countries.

The strangest mile I ran was back and forth in a hallway of the Kayseri Airport in the Cappadocia region of Turkey after a delayed flight.

Some of the most difficult ones were when I had Covid in 2020 and again in 2022, when I dragged myself out of bed each day to run a mile back and forth in my studio apartment. The miles in the cold, at altitude, on winter weekend trips after hours of skiing on fatigued legs were a close second.

The miles during my final year of dental school and my year of residency were a nice constant amid the craziness. They provided me with stability as I moved across the country and again when I finally made the transition from student to dentist.

I have found so much joy in my daily runs. I feel proud and happy to have stuck with it for so long. It is with a heavy heart, and an achy IT band from a recent long-distance run, that I have made the decision to end my streak on my 3-year anniversary.

Though part of me wants to continue forever, it feels like the time has come to move on to new goals. It feels like letting go of a part of me and so I write this synopsis not just to look back and remember this phase of my life, but also as a reminder of the commitment I am making right now to maintain the streaker attitude.

I want to find time for myself daily and keep my body moving. I want to transfer my energy and momentum to new goals and ideas. I want to ensure that I will always take advantage of the opportunity of a spontaneous barefoot mile across a salt flat. Thanks for running with me, streakers.

LAUREN VICENTE'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 926 DAY

My streak ended over the simple fact that I got my days mixed up. I thought I ran, but then realized I didn't! Had to be honest. Not the way I envisioned my streak ending, but hey, that's the way it goes sometimes.

BILL STARK'S NEW STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

Still pounding the pavement as I approach my 75th birthday. Looking back at a photograph shot during Columbia MO's "Human Race," I see from the shadows that neither foot is touching the ground. I sure don't look like that now!

Most mornings, I drive about 10 minutes to a scenic trail and jog 3-miles (except when recovering from injury, maybe once a year, cutting back to 1 or more miles).

At the speed I jog, I am not ashamed to invite house guests to come along with me: "you can walk as fast as I jog."

I guess a 5-year streak at my age is an accomplishment, but I don't boast like I used to do when I retired a 40+ year streak, 9th in the world and 6th retired streak (at that time). Now, if I ever have occasion to describe my life as a streaker, I simply say "I've run at least a mile every day since Sept 10, 1976 except for 13 days while recovering from hernia surgery 5 years ago.

I reached my 3-year streak on June 16th. I was fortunate to have a relatively injury free year this year, which made it easier than the last two years. I'm an adult, so naturally, I bought myself a cake to celebrate because I can! Haha!

I couldn't do it without the support of my husband and son, and all the many running mentors that have come my way, my running clubs, and I'm sure many more!

This week I completed my longest run ever at 40 miles (this is a photo from around mile 30), and I know the daily time on my feet through the streak helped me achieve that goal.

Ken started a run streak---running at least a mile every day--on Memorial Day in 2019. It started as a friendly challenge among co-workers, but after reaching the initial goal of running until the 4th of July, Ken kept going. Eventually, he decided to try to run for an entire year.

Through rain and cold and heat and vacations, he did it! He keeps saying he is going to stop, but so far he is out there every day for the past three years and has not stopped yet!!

This year Ken signed up for the Dopey (all four races) at Disney World's Marathon weekend, he wanted to complete at least one marathon and decided to go all in!

I've had many interesting/difficult runs but have always got it in. Some of those include delayed flights and running in the airport parking lot, running the day after my 100-miler, and waking up to my wife's water breaking and her telling me to go run now.

Not too much has changed with my running except for now I get to push my daughter in the stroller as well. Here's to another 6+ years.

A friend ran every day for a year and he stopped on 27 September 2013. This inspired me to try to do the same so my streak started on 28 September 2013. I got to a year and forgot to stop!

I had run a few marathons and an ultra by then but soon decided to stop the long stuff as I was in a bit of pain. However, a chiropractor straightened me out (literally) and I started going longer again. I love the mountains but also enjoy the hell that is a road marathon or 50k.

I was nearly 45 when I started running and one month into my 50s when I started my streak. I have managed to maintain it through a foot stress fracture and having my arm in plaster. It has come to define me as a person. And I love it.

Runstreaking has been a part of my life for the last 6 years. I first learned about it through Ellen Westfeld, a Swedish run streaker and friend. This daily run has become a valuable and highly prioritized part of my life.

During this pandemic, the run streak has been an important part of my daily routine through days in lock down and restricted socializing. Months in a home office and just meeting co-workers in teams-meetings, made running during my lunch break vital for physical and mental wellbeing.

Now, while back at the office, I tend to do my running on my way to work or a runstreak and coffee run with my sister before work. She is three weeks away from a two-year runstreak and my husband is also a runstreaker who just completed a two-year runstreak. So, this is also a part of our family life.

We are about 30 Norwegians runstreakers that have run for more than a year. We even have a Norwegian Runstreak podcast, «RunstreakPodden» and a Facebook group with about 430 members, so the Norwegian runstreak community is on the rise.

I am grateful for the opportunity to be a part of this inspirational community.

In 2020, I signed up for the Elitefeat summer running challenge to keep me motivated during the summer. I had already been solo running for a few months. I convinced myself that this was the kind of challenge I needed to build a healthy habit, build a fitness regimen, run faster races, perfect my running form, eat carbs, and recapture the discipline of waking up at 5 am so I could make it to the School Pavilion for Theater Induction practice in my first year of college or NYSC Camp drills in Wanune, Benue State.

I have always loved Track and Field events, and I started running more consistently in 2019. The benefits of running are endless. Mental clarity is high on my list. Running has given me personal success, self-discipline, motivation, patience, accomplishments, and persistence. It allows me to dig deep into my soul and push myself harder than I ever thought imaginable. Running has transformed my life beyond my wildest dreams.

2020 was a life-changing year for everyone, and I decided to take a chance on my running dreams and continue to push myself to get where I desire to be.

Before I signed up for the summer challenge, I averaged 10 to 20 miles per week with no specific goal or training plan. I signed up for the challenge a few minutes after getting the notification on the 15th of June. I didn't give it much thought because I believed it was the kind of running challenge I needed to take part in. I had already been going on solo runs during the state-wide shut-down.

Since I began the run streak, I have run a marathon, four half marathons, many 5ks, and even an open relay at the Armory Track New York.

Two years since the beginning of this run streak, I am grateful for the grace to lace up my shoes to run every day. I am excited to be running the summer running challenge again this year! I am forever grateful for the gift of running.

So, 3 years ago I embarked on a "friendly" challenge to run at least 1 mile a day every day for a year. Today [20 June 2022], (day 1096 because of a leap year) I was fortunate to ring in year 3 on some new running trails in my new hometown of Fredericksburg, VA.

During the streak I have run 3615 miles in 3 different countries and 9 states, looped 2 airport satellite parking lots, and did countless 2am runs before traveling to Washington, DC for work. It has become part of my daily routine and my next goal is seeing if I can make it 2,000 days straight.

Completing 14 years of Daily Consecutive Running Workouts and running competitions is Amazing for me to realize!

I made the decision to run each and every day, when I observed that I was skipping several days of running on my monthly calendar log book back in 2008.

So, on June 23, 2008, I began my Daily Consecutive Running Workouts.

Training through these past two and a half years of the Covid-19 Virus has been a tough challenge!

However, during 2020, I completed six virtual solo races. The Riverside July 4th 5 Km, the Virtual Chicago Marathon, the B.A.A. Boston Athletic Association Virtual Triple Race Series. Consisting of the Half Marathon, the 10 Km, and the 5 Km. I also completed the Chicago Virtual Jingle Bell 5 Km Winter Road Race.

During 2021, I completed the Virtual American Birkebeiner Solo "Ski, Run, Bike" Marathon. I began with Cross Country Skiing 5.0 miles, then Running 8.0 miles and Walking 8.0 miles, and concluding with 7.0 miles of Bicycling!

A Grand Total of 28.0 miles on February 26, 2021, in Northern Illinois. The completed Virtual Marathon took 5 hours 19 minutes and 26 seconds, including the two transition clothing change times!

Also, I ran the "in-person," Riverside, July 4th, 5 Km Road Race during 2021.

At almost 75 years old, daily running is just as special as when I began competing for Riverside Brookfield High School in Cross Country, Indoor Track, and Outdoor Track!

Remember to be Thankful, Appreciate, and Enjoy each and every Daily Run!

I am happy to say my streak lives on - day 1102 [22 June 2022]! As I was getting close to the 3-year mark I considered ending it on my own terms because this year was likely the most difficult so far. Then, on the day after I achieved my 3 years, I knew I wasn't ready to give it up and out for a run I went. Now I have a new goal of 5 years. One step (or mile) at a time. :)

I love to run and I am very proud of this streak. My initial plan was a year. I just wanted to prove to myself that I could do it. I was surprised at myself when I just kept going. It's now just something I have to do. It's like eating, showering, & sleeping...I need my daily run just as much as I need to do those things!

Thanks for checking in. It is wonderful to share my joy in streaking with so many from USRSA. I love hearing so many great stories and accomplishments from all its members.

3 years of running every day.

Wow, how good I feel and how strong I feel both in my body and in my mind. This year it was double celebrated because I passed 1000 days and celebrated 3 years.

I wanted to do something unusual and unique to celebrate, so I asked my boss at Volvo Cars Engineplant Aurobay in Skövde, Sweden if I could run my 1000th day in the factory. I got it, so I ran 10 kilometers inside the factory and no one else in the world has run 10 km in an engine factory. So, it is like having a world record.

It was fun to carry out and become a small health event at the company. I love to inspire others to daily movement so it was incredibly fun.

Will I continue? I'll take it day by day.

Feeling very blessed to hit my RSD 5,844 or 16 years! My running streak probably means even more to me this year, as I got COVID after getting 3 COVID vaccinations. Yes, I was able to run through it.

God has also blessed me with three grand babies during the past running streak year. I enjoy running while pushing the babies in their strollers.

So, as encouragement to others, I have given birth to all six of my children, and they were all born within a 7-year time frame (no twins). I am now a 56-year-old Sunny Gram to 3 grand babies.

I have run through airports when flights have been delayed to keep the streak going. I have run while not feeling my best (when I had COVID). I have run while caring for family and loved ones that are in the hospital. I am blessed with friends that are near and that live around the world that run with me.

One of my favorite and faithful running buddies is my youngest son (my running streak began on his 5th birthday, so today he turns 21!) that is in the attached picture with me. Anyone can start a running streak - be intentional and start yours today! #GrannyRunner and God Bless!!

3 years already!

When I started this, it was a bet with some friends: "Let's see who could last more days." I have been alone in the bet for more than 2 and a half years.

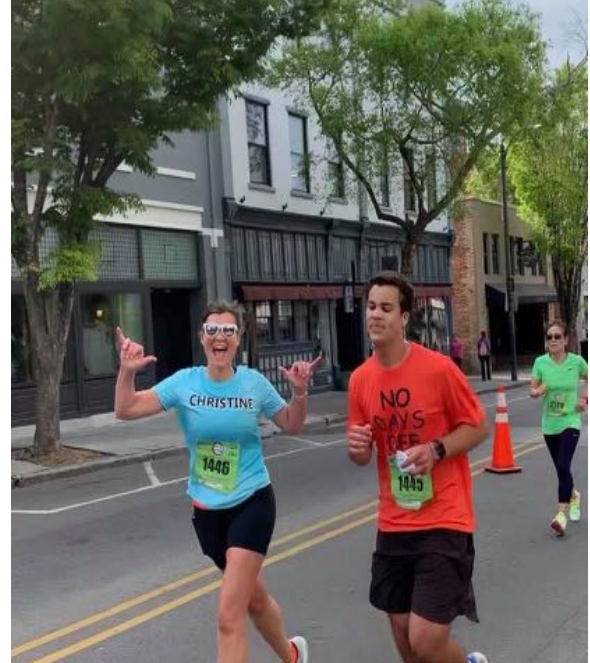

And now it is impossible to stop. I have had to run in airport terminals, or run the day after having done a 24-hour race, after very hard mountain ultras... And I say RUN, because my challenge does not allow walking. Minimum pace 7'30"/km (12'04"/mile) and at least 2km's (1.25 miles).

The average I've run the last 3 years is just over 12km's per day (7.5 miles) and I've run with broken toes, broken ribs or a small hamstring tear (currently).

Creating this habit is one of the best things I have done, because having come this far has allowed me to be constant in my life, in my work, with life in general. If you can achieve your training every day, you can face many other things from day to day.

Long live running!

My son, Riley, and I agreed to complete a running streak for the month of July in 2016. After the month ended we kept running. What was meant to only last for one month continues today.

For races, we display our streak number on the back of our race shirts. We get the most congratulations along the courses. We have even met fellow streakers too during races. We encourage them as well.

Much of our consistent running is credited to our running group, the Sole Family of Clinton, NC. We are small town in eastern NC. Our group is made up of all types of runners who encourage each other. Our motto is, "No one gets left behind."

I hit my 3 year streak this morning [30 June 2022].

I never intended to start a streak, it happened spontaneously. I was having a little issue with my IT band and the advice I found was to run fewer miles at a time, but more often. So, I divided my average weekly mileage by 7 and ran that each day until the issue resolved.

By then, I had a solid streak going and enjoyed the daily commitment to my health. It's been a fun journey that I hope to continue for many more years.

Thank you for the 28th anniversary acknowledgement and well wishes. I started running back on 7/1/1994 at the suggestion of the President of a company I began working for (on the same date) and I am amazed by just how quickly 28 years has flown by.

I am also very fortunate that I have not suffered any major illness although I have had 2 eye surgeries, one hand surgery, and numerous ailments.

10,238 days is not something I ever considered reaching (honestly, I was hoping for 1 week when I started) but I am proud of this streak.

As certain milestones come and go, I create new goals so my next one is to reach 30 consecutive years (7/1/2024). I don't run in any races (I have done 5Ks and one 10-mile run) but nothing within the last 5 years.

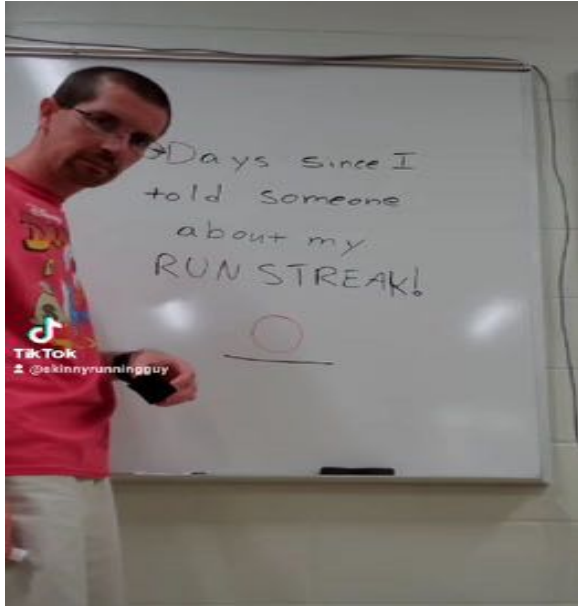

I respect all of the people the registry acknowledges and their incredible streaks, when one starts out they don't recognize just how many determined people there are out there.

Run streakers!

Yesterday [10 July 2022] I raced the Ironman 70.3 Jönköping triathlon that also includes running (run streak #1100).

I did ok and felt strong during my sub5 race. As the running is the final of the three disciplines and usually your legs have been through a lot during the day, many triathletes do not look forward to the run.

For me it is a "safe place" and usually when I can enjoy the support of spectators, other triathletes and family.

The run streak helps me build my stamina and mental toughness. I can focus on the energy-plan, my pulse etc. No worries. :)

If it is the discipline, the mental "just do it" or the fact that I have already proof of my capabilities or all of it, I do not know.

The most common question I get is "but do you not get ill?" The second and third is "do you mean EVERY day?" and "how long will you keep going?"

My run streak is not something I have to do. It is something I want to do. The difference is huge. At the same time if I get ill or risk hurting myself, the run streak will be restarted. This is something I believe will strengthen me and I like that idea. I will keep on even when the years start ticking.

I am also a bit curious and eager what this will give me in the future. Since I have been through different stages of mental phases (of run streak) and keep on growing, I will keep on exploring.

The thing I am most proud of is the impact I have created in my community. It is like ripples on the water. I sometimes write about my run streak in FB, Insta etc. Sometimes a friend is in the right metal place to pick it up, and do it!

They inspire someone else and it continues. To plant a seed, a thought, can help others be a positive and inspiring example.

I heard a person use this as an answer as to "it's so boring": "Do you think brushing your teeth is fun? Do the dishes or washing? And you do that every day? Maybe you have as a human, do things that is good for you or give you values in life but is not always fun.

Keep on.

ADAM WILLIAMS' STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

I was looking at my email file, when I came across a note from USRSA congratulating me for hitting my running streak three-year anniversary. I was surprised. I mean I knew I was coming up on it but everything going on this summer I totally let it slip by!!! Needless to say, it was a fantastic reminder of the community around this crazy passion. The streak continues - 1,108 day as of today [8 July 2022], with a few highlights below:

- 706-day streak of at least 7 miles or more, which is still active.
- over 8,850 miles run during the streak.
- average 7.99 miles per day.
- multiple ultramarathons, and other races, finished during the streak (even a few podiums).
- ran in most of the western United States during the streak, and a few locations outside the US which I hope to increase as things open up.

Again, I appreciate this community and keep on runnin'!

4 years... Thought of something special to do today [11 July 2022]. Like run 4 mil (40 km), but felt too far. 4 min/km? Too fast. 4 hours? Too long... So maybe just 4 km? Will do. But where? A special place... Been thinking for a week, but finally, this afternoon I decided to run on the best place there is. The place I run most of the time. Along the ocean from home. A nice evening run with daughter and husband. Then celebrating with homegrown veggies that I let the family cook for me, while my feet got a nice and needed footbath!

Tomorrow I start my fifth year. Hope to be able to go on for many years still. I love what the streak and running is doing to me. Even if not every run is lovely...

A good year - in March I reached 1,000 days in my streak and in July I got to 3 years. I ran every day while attending Glastonbury Festival and had 150 runners join me on one of the mornings. Hi, 6 years completed. I have set my own rules: minimum 1mile, must be in running gear, and, as I do a lot of travel through work, a day has to be in the time zone I am in!!

ROD TRENT'S STREAK HITS 7 YEARS

Today, July 13, 2022, marks my 7th year running every single day. Several rounds of Covid, passing a kidney stone, and my dad's passing made it a bit tougher the past couple years, but I stuck with it, survived, and believe I am better for it.

Daily runs invigorate my creativity and set my thinking straight allowing me to be more successful in my profession. I can't imagine my mental state or my energy levels without that daily run.

Running is my happy place.

HECTOR CORNEJO'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

My 2-year anniversary has come and gone. Unlike my first anniversary where I celebrated by running 1 mile every hour on the hour for 32 miles, this year's celebration was quieter and simpler; a simple 5 miler bright and early. But importantly, to celebrate my 50th birthday.

Within the last month, I started a new job and there are several times during the week where I stay to work until either 2am or 4am. I clock in at 4pm.

Long hours yes. But, I digress.

In the last year, I completed a few races, because we've just starting coming back from the pandemic.

Last October, I did complete a solo marathon, the virtual Boston Marathon.

Some of my closest running friends and my wife and kids came out to support me throughout the route.

It was exhilarating. Running out there literally by yourself.

My friends surprised me by flying in my very best friend so she could be posted at mile 21. I was yaw-dropped excited to see her there. It was just the push I needed to at those late miles.

Another milestone was hitting over 2600 streaking miles... something I never really thought would be feasible... and lastly, all this running needed to have another goal than to just simply rack up miles and days.

I started a fundraiser on givebutter.com For every mile I run, I simply ask for $1. It's that simple.

It'll be interesting to see how this new job affects my running. For my mileage. I try to aim for 30 weekly miles. And now that in-person races are back in full swing, I'll aim to rack up a few more miles. But I know this new job, will affect it. Let's hope not for the worse. Happy miles. Stay up. Don't stop!

ERIK LUNDSTROM'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 610 DAYS

I started the streak as a "100 miles in 100 days." At the end I felt - this is easy! I reached 200 days, 1 year, 500 days, no matter weather, injuries, funerals and more, I run. I felt strong!

And I kept running - "why stop now, go for 1,000 days!" But... one day, I forgot.

Alan Paschedag

ALLAN PASCHEDAG'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

I am a 5k runner and have always included a day or two off in training most weeks. A friend at work, Mike Raples, a marathoner, had been running every day. He is on this list and way ahead of me.

I decided to start a streak. The goal was to run 100 days in a row. Well, I got to 85 days and wound up with an overuse injury. There goes the streak. Maybe just not for me.

Not to be defeated, I started another streak. This time I made it to 100 days. Now what? Well try for 200 days. Next goal achieved. So, running every day for a year seemed like a good goal. As I am now at two years, that goal, 500 days and now two years have been achieved.

Every day has been run outdoors. There have been a couple of tough days running in snow boots during snow storms in the winter. I have to be lucky and not had to run in much rain.

With covid, I was working from home. That means even less getting up and walking around then in the office. Many days I would sit in front of the computer and get up at lunch. So, my daily run was not only an escape but was becoming a required activity.

Also, with covid, many virtual runs were popping up, as in person races had stopped. At first, they did not appeal to me. Then I saw an opportunity to have a goal in my daily run and get the mileage up.

I ran the length of the Garden State Parkway, from Vero Beach to Key West and the length of the NYC subway system. For me the distance was a bit of a grind but the goals kept me going. Many days I would run twice in the day.

Somehow, even though I was now running every day, my miles per day have increased. I used to run about 3 miles five days a week. My yearly total was typically 800 with a top of 1,000. One year I ran 1,200-miles and two marathons.

Now I run every day and run over 4 miles per day. For the last 2 years, I have logged just over 1,600 miles per year. I am on track to run over 1,600 miles again this year. So, running every day increased my miles per day? Hard to believe.

The goal was always to get back to live races. I worried that running every day and the increased mileage would really hurt my 5k times. My running club, Jersey Shore Running Club, has a number of fun runs. There is the kilt run, New Year's Eve party preceded by a short 2 mile run and other less competitive runs. These were good but not an indication of how I would do in a race situation.

There were some races in 2021 but not a regular schedule like pre-covid. I did the NYC Marathon in November.

This year my running 5ks started back in force again. I was travelling for work and did four races in Florida in January and February. To my surprise my times were the best they have been in a couple of years. I did the Atlantic City Rock n Roll half marathon and was surprised at my time. It was a minute or two faster than my last about eight years ago.

So, it seems that somehow running every day has helped my race times. Now the worry is what happens if I stop running every day? I am not sure how long the streak will last. What is next? Maybe 1,000 days, three years or...?

Streak continues one day at a time.

ADAM SAYNUK'S STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

July 19 is my 5-year streakaversary!

5 years of running at least a mile every day, averaging a little over a 5k daily. The majority of my runs have been 5k, with 33% over 4 miles.

I definitely feel that I'm healthier than another me in another reality who has not been running this whole time. He would also have been diagnosed with RA during these last 5 years; also, would have needed something to focus his anxious energy during pandemic lock-downs, he also would have traveled to beautiful Portugal, Catskills, Finger Lakes, Canada, and more... but he wouldn't have seen so much of them, like I do, as I carve out a daily run wherever I am.

I'm often on the edge of lost when not running at home, vaguely meandering my way back toward wherever I've come from, trying to carve out something like 3-ish miles. Even in the tumult of our recent move, and the messy in-between, my runs were a daily, forced, head-clearing, and an opportunity to explore Weehawken and the shoulder of Route 3 around the La Quinta in Secaucus.

During 5 years of every day runs, I've burned about 704,209 calories, which roughly equals 2.946 gigajoules, or the amount of energy released by 3/4 ton of TNT explosion. That comparison is more thrilling than saying I burned enough energy to light 13,640 60-watt incandescent light bulbs for one hour, or one light bulb for 13,640 hours. Woo, git it you little king.

In these 5 years I've run 5,818 miles. Just about enough to run from Brunswick, GA to San Diego, back to Brunswick, and out to California again. I've used numerous pairs of running shoes, switching approximately every 500 miles, and I've had lots of opportunity to work my tan, running shirtless these humid hot summer runs.

At this point it would feel pretty strange to go through a day without my run. So, on to the next 50 years of daily running!

I started running in law school as a quick and effective way to expend some energy and take a break from my 18-hour study days. I realized around day 9 or 10 that I happened to have a short streak going, which was the most I'd ever run before... so I chose to run that day... and the next... and the next 2,911! "Don't break the streak" is powerful.

During my running streak: I've traveled to 12 countries; started and graduated law school; got married; have had 3 sons (my second son has Down syndrome and spent 7 weeks in the NICU, during which time my wife and I boarded every night at the hospital, so I did about 52,000 laps in the hospital bathroom since covid policy prohibited leaving and returning to the hospital within 24 hours); ran almost every day with my wife during her 4-year running streak, which she didn't break for the birth of our first son (so we both ran around the hospital room together then); ran a 5k every day during 2020, except the last 2 weeks of the year during our NICU stay for our second son; ran outside every day, except about 60 days due to hospital covid policy; and have run shirtless since October 9, 2017—including outdoor runs during the 2019 polar vortex with wind chills at -42° and -48°. Due to illness, my current streak ended on August 5th (I last ran on the 4th). By my calculations, that adds up to 1685 days, given the start date of 12/24/17.

It was my second longest streak, and probably the hardest. I've been diagnosed with spinal stenosis, making it difficult to walk long distances or stand for more than about 5 minutes. Fortunately, I can get miles in on my treadmill—leaning forward helps alleviate the condition. I'll probably start a new streak soon, letting you know when a year has passed.

DAVID HAMILTON'S STREAK HITS 6 YEARS

My streak is alive and shuffling on.

A quick note on my ongoing (11 plus year) "injury." My ankle problem has been successfully diagnosed! It had progressed from simply jogging slower and slower to my foot turning inward and even being painful to walk with a noticeable limp.

I had been to top notch podiatrists, sports medicine therapist, etc. all who simply said "the problem is your ankle is collapsing and do these stretchy band exercises" to "Yea, keep doing those exercises and if it's not better in two weeks come see me again."

Months of those exercises having zero effect and finally I decided to see an orthopedist, who had the crazy idea to take an x-ray. Upon seeing the result, the x-ray technician was able to immediately diagnose the problem later confirmed by the doctor himself. The verdict was: "advanced arthritis, significant joint degeneration, and loose bodies." And, "Your ankle is collapsing" (no he didn't say that). He did say that the ankle has been bone on bone for quite a while. And the severity of the problem was clarified when he said I have two options in the future: joint fusion or an ankle replacement. He said he has had great success with replacement but not until it has gotten to the point to warrant going that direction.

For now, I play it by ear and do stretching and topical pain ointments which help just a little. What I have found out to work even better, however, was to lose some weight. Once I passed a certain weight threshold it showed a definite change for the better. I'm still working on that. The doctor did say that spraining both my ankles many times during my competitive career didn't help things, but he said this is mainly a genetic, hereditary issue. One which every member of my family has suffered from in one form or another.

So, I trot on and do what I can. Yes, I still get passed by snails and admit I no longer go fast enough to claim that my speed is "glacial." However, I now claim to have discovered a new slow speed level, one which I call: "Plate Tectonic!" You heard it here first. Streak on!

Day 730, so I made it to 2 years!

In this last year there have been 24 marathons, 3 ultras, 1 10k, 3 half marathons and a 10-mile race! I was diagnosed with breast cancer in December but it was caught nice and early and I ran through my treatment and radiotherapy!

I've recorded 7677 miles so far! My official marathon tally is now at #66 and I hope to push on and reach #100 next year!

In March I ran Haverhill Marathon for the second time! It was a very small field, there were only 3 ladies in the race so that was it! My friend Karen and I were joint First Lady but not being the fastest runners still ended second to last! It was still great to bring a trophy home! I've also managed to pb my half marathon time twice this year, which was quite a feat considering I'm happy to just plod out the miles and I don't really do any speed work! So onwards and upwards, just one foot in front of the other!

JEMAL SWOBODA'S STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

When I first joined SRI/USRSA, I recall seeing the 25, 30, and 50-year streaks as off the charts crazy but recall thinking that making it 5 years would be incredible. Well...here I am!

This year included extending my streak while trying to pull off my first race (The Outerbelt Ultras) as a race director. It also included suffering through a run the day after my first 100-mile trail run in April at the Potawatomi Trail Runs - coming in 8th overall!

Perhaps the biggest achievement this year (and most likely reason for the streak ending someday...) was running in the hospital parking lot the afternoon my son Wesley was born in June. I'm glad labor started late in the day and he arrived early the next morning because leaving my wife in labor to run would not have gone over well!

In addition to running at least a daily mile, I also have a concurrent goal of running at least 100 miles each month and proud to say that streak has been extended as well to 60 months. In fact, I timed my 5-year anniversary run to be 5 miles on July 28th so that I would hit the 100-mile mark on the same run. The same day, I fired up a very well-loaded Penske 26-foot truck and started the drive to move my family from Evanston, IL to Olympia, WA where we hope to find a home in the coming weeks/months.

I'm excited for more runs in the woods and on trails but I'll miss Lake Michigan and all my Local Legend Strava segments. Onward to a new year and healthy miles and I do hope to join those crazy folks that inspired me when I first joined -- someday 20+ years from now!

Growing up, my family did not do "sports." Back in junior high, I despised being forced to run in the blazing heat on the school's asphalt track. (Asthma didn't help either.)

Later in college, walking became a problem. I was diagnosed with HLAB-27 (genetic) after having gotten rheumatoid-type arthritis. (Think crutches and excruciatingly painful swollen knees the size of basketballs going up and down on dorm staircases.)

Fast forward to getting older... life improved with significantly lessened symptoms. My husband talked about how great running was. (I would give him that look that says "you're crazy.") Fast forward some more. I believed that running was an important skill for our children to learn how to do... which meant I had to participate.

Much to my surprise, I accidentally and unintentionally fell in love with running when my son suddenly looked back at me and kicked it into high gear to cross a finish line at a local fun run... and I followed suit!

In training for a Disney 5k, I remember when increasing running time of 30 seconds to 45 seconds was a BIG deal! Family 3.1 mile runs three days a week were certainly nice for a couple of years... and now that has been bumped up to 5 miles.

Training on a running trail that my husband built in the summer of 2021 in our backyard has enabled me to run daily. 8.5 is my typical daily distance now... aided by family encouragement and massive amounts of Depeche Mode via earbuds.

On most weekends I train to improve half marathon times. And so far... only one marathon (a little too snail-esque) has been completed.

I began running with my dad at 9 years old in 1979 and began competing/ racing in track at 13 years old in 1983 at Altimira Junior High School in Sonoma, CA where I set the 8th grade mile record running a 4:54 in 1984.

I went to Sonoma Valley HS from 1984 to 1988 and qualified and ran in the first CA State Meet for high school cross-country in 1987- my Senior year. I set the SVHS school record for the 2 mile in 1988 at 9:34.

I then ran cross-country, indoor and outdoor track at Columbia University for 4 years, and was the team's top cross-country runner in 1991. My personal bests were 14:48 for a 5K, 31:21 for a 10K and 9:19 in the 3K Steeplechase.

Since graduating from college, I have competed in hundreds of races including 2 mile, 5K, 10K, 12K, 10-mile, Half Marathon and Full Marathon, recording victories at all distances.

I've completed 20 Full Marathons, including winning the Avenue of the Giants marathon in 2011, finishing in the top 100 at the New York Marathon in 2002 and running in the 100th Boston Marathon in 1996.

In addition to the 100th Boston Marathon, I competed in the 100th Dipsea (Mill Valley to Stinson Beach) in 2010, finishing 24th, and in the 100th Bay to Breakers 12K in SF in 2011, finishing 64th.

I have also been coaching cross-country at SVHS for 22 years, where I've been the Head Coach since 2011.

Regarding my streak, I have averaged 10+ miles a day for the last 8 years and I have run through bruised ribs, strained leg muscles, sprained ankles, sickness, migraines and COVID-19, plus extreme weather hot and cold to keep the streak going-- which I'm sure is similar to what everyone else with a running streak has gone through! I'm really happy to finally be joining the USRSA to have solidarity with other streak runners!

[Editor's note: Technically a running streak that started on 11 August 2019 (as your streak does) would complete the 3-year anniversary on 10 August 2022 whether it included a leap year or not. Streak anniversaries are not calculated the same way as wedding anniversaries or birthdays. For example, if a person was married at noon on 1 January 2022, they would have been married one day at noon on January 2nd, two days at noon on January 3rd, and complete one year at noon on 1 January 2023. On the other hand, if a person started a running streak on that same 1 January 2022, they would be credited with one day of running on January 1st, two days of running on January 2nd, and 365 days (366 for leap years) on 31 December 2022.]

BRITT KARLSSON'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

Hi, I started my runstreak because I got a bit bored of my walks, I wanted something more. And it was a pandemic that made me want to try something new. I also started to do winter bath. I have been taking a bath in a sea, river, or in ocean every month for more than two years as well.

But the thing that got me into runstreak the most was that I always been running, now and then, but in the last 10 years I got headaches after running long or training hard, and it is hard to not pressure yourself when you have the power, and think it fun, and to get adrenalin kicks. So, instead of not running at all because I can't run long, hard and fast, I found this. I can be a runner even though I don't do marathons. I can run every day, short or long. I love it.

I don't run fast, I don't run long, BUT I RUN EVERY DAY, it's fantastic, I'm fantastic, we're all fantastic. Love runstreak. :)

RANDY ROGERS' STREAK HITS 37 YEARS

I moved from Tomball, Texas to Rockford, Illinois in June. I ran 6 miles today [13 August 2022] on the path at Rock Valley College to start my 38th year of the running streak.

My daughter lives in Peoria, Illinois and she is on track to hit 6 years in October for her own running streak.

I just started a new job as Assistant Principal at Immanuel Lutheran School in Belvidere, Illinois.

My wife, Linda, and I celebrated our 40th wedding anniversary in June. We have three children, all runners:

- Kari (age 33) in Peoria, IL
- James (30) in Holland, Michigan
- Bethany (27) in Chicago, IL

I thank God for allowing me to continue running every day at age 61.

MIKE STAUDINGER'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

Sunday August 14th was the 3rd anniversary of my run streak. When I started this in August of 2019, I didn't plan to go 1000+ days. My first goal was 30 days, then 100.

When I hit 100 it was almost the end of the year...so why not go to the end of 2019. Then it turns out 2020 was a leap year, so you can run 366 days in a year....well by the end of 2020 I was hooked.

Some of the toughest days were the days after Covid vaccinations and when I had finger surgery in April of 2020. The surgeon wanted me to stop running for two weeks to keep sweat out of the incision. I ran at 5 am in the cool air with my hand up so any sweat would run away.

Then there was the time I travelled to Ireland and wasn't sure about the time change from San Diego. I ended up dragging my carry on around Heathrow to get in a mile just in case and then shower in the airline lounge.

Another time I got up at 3 am to run a mile before we drove 20 hours to Montana on a vacation road trip. I spared my family from having to watch me run a mile somewhere in Utah and then get back in the car sweaty. :) I am sure we all have been creative in keeping our streaks alive.

The run streak has become more than just a goal. I have had quite a few people tell me that the streak has inspired them to walk to X number of minutes every day or to start their own run streak...you never know who you will inspire.

My new goal is to run a half marathon in every state over the next 10 years...hopefully my run streak will go right along with me across the USA.

Managed to keep the streak when I had covid and trained for and ran a marathon. Those days after a marathon were a challenge but I made it! The streak lives on!!

CURTIS BONK JOINS USRSA “Plodding, Pondering, and Podcasting through the Pandemic”

Approximately 20 years ago (circa 2002 and 2003), I ran every day for around 13 or 14 months. Around that time, I ran in the October 2002 Chicago Marathon (my only marathon to date). However, after a year of running, I got severe plantar fasciitis pain and had to stop. I actually did not know what it was for several weeks or more until I saw the doctor and he checked out my aching feet. Several quite painful visits to a physical therapist for foot scaping after that took care of it.

Fast forward to March 2020 and the outbreak of the COVID-19 pandemic. This time I started running the same day that my colleagues from the University of Kansas, Harvard, Arizona State, the University of Colorado at Denver, East China Normal University, and I (from Indiana University

(IU)) decided to start a podcast show called Silver Lining for Learning (SLL). The mission of SLL was to have weekly conversations about new models of education and the future of learning with educators and educational leaders from across the globe (if interested, see:

<https://silverliningforlearning.org/>).

We ramped up SLL in a matter of days.

My colleagues and I all thought that the pandemic (and our podcast show) would be over in a month or two; maybe three or four, at most. The weekly show on Saturday afternoons gave us some purpose and something unique to look forward to each week during the pandemic. At the time of the first show, I was visiting my son Alex in Portland and so I decided to get in a 3-4 mile run before the show. That was Saturday March 21, 2020. The next day I had a stunning run up Mt. Tabor which was near my son's house. I was to fly home the day after that on Monday the 23rd. However, due to COVID-19, the majority of flights were being canceled and I kept getting bumped to different flight home. Finally, I had a flight through Atlanta on Delta on route to Indianapolis that was not canceled and I actually got back earlier than I expected.

When I got back to Bloomington, Indiana early in the evening that Monday, I decided to keep running as the Indiana Governor Eric Holcomb had announced a quarantine that went into effect at midnight the next day. But then I kept going after the quarantine started. In my mind, running was the one way to get outside every day. Soon 10 days of running became 100 and then 365 and then 500 and now it stands at 877 with a new target or goal of 1,001 which is my birthday on December 16.

I'm still running and my SLL team and I are still podcasting; Episode #117 was yesterday [13 August 2022] and the next one will be with Sesame Street people.

I should note that I only run outside; on the really cold winter days here in Indiana, I often have up to 8 layers of clothes on. I have run in icy street conditions, wicked rainstorms, deep snow drifts, and bloody hot days. I have had dozens of chigger bites on me after one park trail run and then over a dozen ticks on me the next time that I went there. While I won't go back to that lovely trail for a while, I keep running and make a game out of it.

Fortunately, to keep me going, many of my current and former IU students have bought me gifts with running goals on them like shirts that say, "May the Course Be With You: 850 or Bust." And my son got me a shirt for Christmas that says, "Pandemic Pondering: 731 or Bust." I got around 8 new shirts and I bought about 16 new pairs of ASICS so far during the streak.

I do a minimum of 2 miles each day. The first 500 days I ran between 2 and 7 miles a day. Now I run between 2 and 5 miles a day; slow on the way out and intermittent sprinting on the way back. Roughly half of the time, I run with Oliver, my four-year-old cockapoo.

I have taken many pictures of southern Indiana and Oliver during the streak (over 34,000) and posted philosophical reflections to Facebook on what I saw during my first 500 days of running. I am currently working on a daily pull off calendar with those pics and quotes and calling it "Pondering on... Leadership, Learning, and Life." I have seen many rivers, lakes, and parks in southern Indiana during my runs that I have never seen before despite living here in Bloomington, Indiana for three decades. Running each day definitely forces you to see new things and approach life in a more contemplative and appreciative way.

Naturally, I have had my share of aches and pain. But my PT has helped with both my knees and my left ankle. Those runners knee exercises really work! And this time I have been able to just say no to plantar fasciitis.

JENNIFER MACK JOINS USRSA

I've run more than 40 races this year plus all my training. I run to work at 330 in the morning. I thought quitting drinking was hard..lol..until I started to run.

I am 48 years old and have finally found my passion - what I want to do. I can't wait to see what my future holds. This is me.. and I love me finally.

MADDIE FENSKE'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

It has been a wonderful 2 years of running! I am beyond thankful for the support from my family and friends as well as other runners who have streaks that have inspired me!

Within this last year I have completed 3 marathons I can't wait to see what this next year brings!

SCOTT OVERTON'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 3,264 DAYS

I've unfortunately had to retire this streak. I am currently recovering from ALIF (Spinal Fusion) Surgery which means my streak ended on 19 July this year - just under a month from my 9-year anniversary (3264 days).

I'm truly gutted to have to end the streak, but the benefits of getting fixed and pain free did somewhat outweigh the consequences of not getting the surgery!

I have the utmost admiration for those undertaking a streak, not only having lived through the logistics for almost 9 years, but also seeing several of my friends unsuccessfully try to start their own streaks – it's not easy!

Please pass my congratulations and support through to all on the next newsletter.

I'm looking forward to January 2023, when I will be "allowed" to run again so I can start again!

NANCY WEST'S STREAK HITS 15 YEARS

I'm delighted to be celebrating my 15th streak-aversary in Aspen, Colorado, and had a lovely 3.5-mile run this morning in Aspen's North Star Preserve. It is always very gratifying to hear from you on this date! It's been a good steady year for running. I'm slow but mostly grateful not to have any orthopedic issues at this time.

BRUCE MORTENSON'S STREAK HITS 11 YEARS

I made 11 years this morning after an 8 mile run. I am at 1210 miles for the year.

We just got back Fromm Oregon where I attended 20 days of US and International track and field meets. I really enjoy mixing my time between Minnesota and Oregon as it gives me a variety of running routes.

I've stayed healthy so hopefully can keep my streak going.

ERIK EHINGER'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

I started this journey three years ago when I was on vacation in France with friends. We started together for fun as a joke but I loved it and just kept going since. I recommend runstreak for everyone! You stay in shape and you get to see things and explore places that you would never have done if not for the streak. How to start a streak? Step 1: start running. There is no step 2. Happy running!

If you can fill the unforgiving minute
With sixty seconds' worth of distance run,
Yours is the Earth and everything that's in it,
And---which is more---you'll be a Man, my son!

THE FINISH LINE

By: Mark Washburne

This Fall 2022 issue of our newsletter features Boston Marathon race director Dave McGillivray, who completed his 50th consecutive Boston Marathon in April and who also surpassed 500 days of daily running at the end of July. As noted in our article, Mr. McGillivray is a truly amazing athlete and business leader with a host of other accomplishments including his 3,452-mile RUN ACROSS AMERICA in 80 consecutive days to raise money for the Jimmy Fund, his founding of DMSE Sports that manages mass participatory road race events, his being the author of several adult and children's books, and much more.

Mr. McGillivray is also an excellent speaker. Here is what I wrote in the Summer 2014 THE FINISH LINE after hearing him speak at the Boston Marathon expo and my own experiences running both the 2013 and 2014 marathons in that city:

On April 21, 2014, I had the honor of running the 118th edition of the Boston Marathon. Given the tragic events of last year's marathon, this year's race was filled with emotion for many, including me. In last summer's edition of The Streak Registry, I recounted running the 2013 Boston Marathon. As I mentioned in that earlier newsletter, I crossed the finish line at 2:14 p.m. for that April 15th, 2013 race. My girlfriend [editor's note: now wife], Diane Naughton, was a spectator for the race and was a couple hundred yards from the finish line when I completed my 26.2-mile journey. Our plan was for Diane to wait on Boylston Street near the finish line until I called her. It took me 21 minutes – I later checked my cell phone records - to pick up my bag and call Diane. Unknown to us, we only had minutes to spare before tragedy struck where Diane was standing. As I was walking back to our hotel, I heard two very loud booms around 2:50 p.m. – 36 minutes after I finished the marathon. While Diane sensed something was wrong, she said that she had left the finish line area on Boylston Street by cutting through Lord & Taylor and did not hear the bombs. While Diane did not even hear the blasts, my heart skipped a beat by the media coverage on Thursday night (April 18, 2013) when they said that they had video surveillance of the suspects that was taken by the cameras at Lord & Taylor. This was the same store that Diane had cut through just minutes before the explosion to meet me back at the hotel. While it was a close call for Diane and me, many people were not as lucky. Over 260 people were injured and three were killed in the 2013 Boston Marathon bombings.

As I prepared for this year's [2014] Boston Marathon, I did not know what to expect or how I would feel. My most touching moment came the day before the marathon when Diane and I attended the "Boston Marathon Legends" hosted by Runner's World Magazine. This year's panel included running greats such as Bill Rodgers, Amby Burfoot, Jack Fultz, Greg Meyer, and Kathrine Switzer. All of these past Boston Marathon champions had interesting stories to tell but the person who received the loudest and longest standing ovation at the seminar was the Boston Marathon race director Dave McGillivray.

In his presentation, Mr. McGillivray recounted his experiences on that tragic day. Like us, Mr. McGillivray is a streak runner but his streak involves running consecutive Boston Marathons that usually begins after the ceremonies end for the winners. In 2013, Mr. McGillivray said he was near the marathon start line in Hopkinton preparing to run his 41st consecutive Boston Marathon when he received a call about the bombings at the finish line. The police then rushed him to the finish line, where he experienced the chaos of that day. At one point, he tried to get closer to where the bombings took place but was prevented by a police officer. Mr. McGillivray explained to the officer that he was the race director and that he should be allowed access as it was his marathon. In a chilling comment, the officer said that it was not Mr. McGillivray's marathon any more. Mr. McGillivray concluded his emotional remarks by telling the audience that the next day, at the 2014 race, we would be taking back Boylston Street and the Boston Marathon for the runners and spectators. Many in the audience were crying (including me) and he received a sustained standing ovation from the crowd that lasted several minutes.

Over the years, there has been overlap between Boston Marathon streak runners and our own running streak association. In fact, the Founder of the Boston Marathon Quarter Century Club (QCC) is Ron Kmiec, who was also a daily streak runner with a 32-year-old and another 13-year-old daily streaks. The QCC keeps track of runners who have completed 25 consecutive Boston Marathons or more. We featured Mr. Kmiec in our Summer 2017 issue of our newsletter that included a blurb from the Boston Marathon race director and fellow member of the QCC, Dave McGillivray.

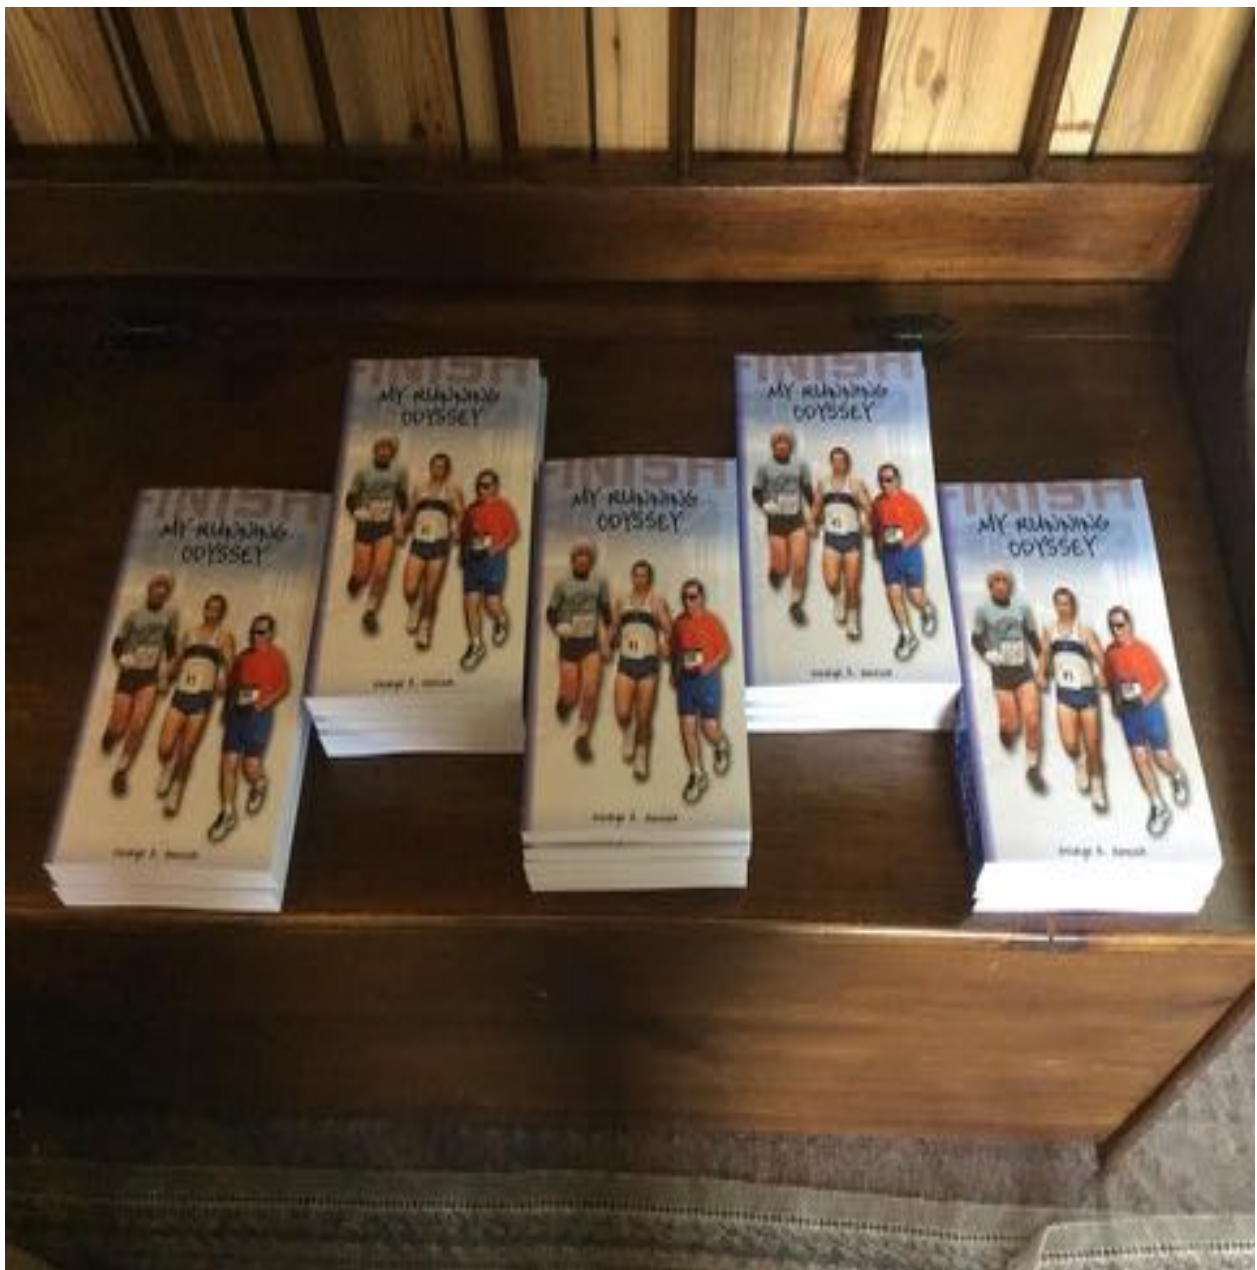

Another connection between the Boston Marathon and our running streak association concerns the late Ron Hill of England. Dr. Hill, who still tops our list with the longest retired daily running streak in the world at over 52 years, was also the winner of the 1970 Boston Marathon. As Ron Hill inspired many of us to try daily running (me included), the three-time Olympian inspired others to run the Boston Marathon. "My inspiration for running Boston in the first place was Ron Hill from Great Britain," noted Dave McGillivray. "Ron, who had a daily streak of 52+ years, won the 1970 Boston Marathon. He set a then course record of 2:10 in the pouring rain. I was listening to that race on the radio while helping my Dad work on his car in the garage. I recall turning to my Dad and saying, 'someday I'm going to run in that race, Dad.' Three years later I finished my first Boston."

As you can probably tell, I am a big fan of Dave McGillivray. A few years back I asked to be his friend on Facebook and he kindly accepted. As he noted in his article, Mr. McGillivray does a birthday challenge each year by running and biking his new age. On my birthday, in March 2021, I received a Facebook message from Mr. McGillivray asking me to join his club and design my own birthday run challenge. I am not very creative so I opted to do the same challenge I have been doing since the last day of 1989 and that is to run 3-miles a day without missing a day. DONE, COMPLETED, and still on-going.

As the Boston Marathon race director was kind enough to challenge me for my birthday, I thought it was only fair that I send a challenge back his way. "Running challenge accepted Dave," I wrote to him on my birthday in 2021. "In return and if you are up for it, here is a running challenge for you on my birthday and from your friends at Streak Runners International and the United States Running Streak Association. You being someone who knows something about streaks having run the last 48 consecutive Boston Marathons (an amazing accomplishment and even more so that you completed many of the 26.2 mile runs after serving all day as race director), we want to challenge you to add your name to our every day running streak list. In order to accomplish this challenge, you have to run at least one mile a day for a year. . . Are you up for the challenge? Thanks again for the birthday wishes and challenge."

Dave McGillivray accepted our challenge to run every day and now he has a daily streak of over 500 days that compliments his Boston streak of over 50 years. Mr. McGillivray also has kept up his own birthday challenge to himself. "Although my birthday isn't until August 22nd, I decided to get the birthday 'run' done today," wrote Dave McGillivray in an email dated 13 August 2022. "This was the 56th consecutive year I have done the birthday run now, starting at age 12. I started at 5am in the dark. After my heart surgery a few years ago, I decided to change the rules and simply run a marathon (26.2 miles) and bike the rest. My Game, My Rules! So, that is exactly what I did today, ran a marathon (4:40 running time) and biked 42-miles for a total of 68-miles. . . It's getting exponentially more difficult to do this each year with the aging process and the amount of miles I have to cover. The trick I use to convince myself I can still do this is I just say to myself, hey, all I have to do is go one more mile further than last year!! Seems to be working so far! Felt good the entire day...perfect weather day. My daughter, Elle, joined me for a few running miles, too, which of course was the highlight of my day. Nice to check this one off the list again. And, I still love this perfect birthday card."

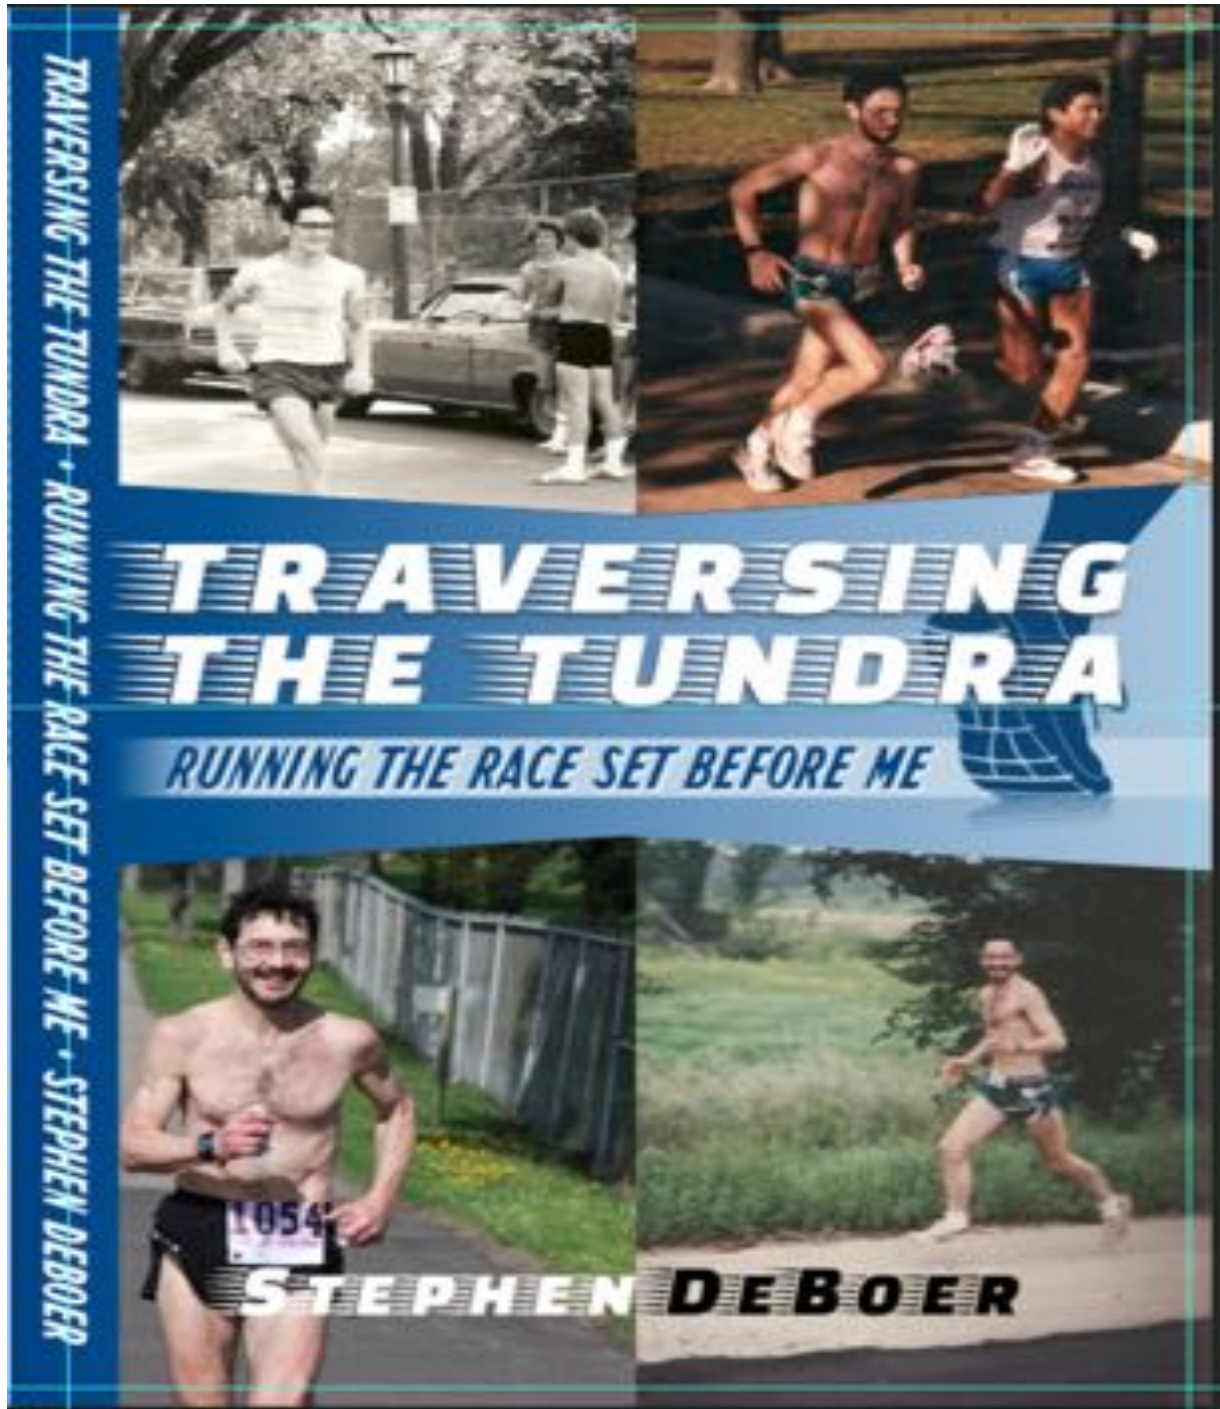

Continued good luck to Dave McGillivray with his running and streaks (Birthday, Boston and Daily). As always, I also want to wish all of you good luck as we each run the roads and trails – every day!

MEMBERSHIP—DUES

Membership in Streak Runners International and the United States Running Streak Association, Inc. is open to all interested individuals.

SRI/USRSA dues are $20.00 annually or $250.00 lifetime. Credit for one-half of all previously paid dues will be applied to the payment of lifetime dues. Once lifetime membership status is achieved, no further dues will be assessed.

A completely filled out and signed membership application must accompany the dues payment. Applications may be downloaded from our website at www.runeveryday.com, or will be mailed upon request.

STREAK CERTIFICATION

Once a running streak reaches a year in duration it is eligible for listing by SRI/USRSA. Listing of one's active or retired running streak requires a fully completed and signed streak certification form, which may also be downloaded from the SRI/USRSA site or mailed upon request. Although membership is not a requirement for listing, the SRI/USRSA appreciates all contributions to its cause.
